GO and TTC plan regular schedules

G20 Summit

TRANSIT GO Transit and the Toronto Transit Commission say they plan to provide regular service during the G20 summit.

The TTC says all subway stations and lines will be open. There will be some minor changes to surface routes near the G20 security area. GO says it plans to operate trains and buses on a regular schedule this week and throughout the summit. Both transit systems say commuters can sign up for alerts to keep abreast of any summit-related service changes.

Information will also be posted on their websites, www.ttc.ca and www.gotransit.com

5.0 tremor rattles residents across Ontario and Quebec

Cars were shaken from their parking spots, buildings cracked and residents ran through the streets yesterday as a magnitude 5.0 earthquake left a small town in western Quebec in a state of emergency and much of central Canada wondering what was going on.

The damage appeared to be concentrated on Gracefield, Que., a tiny municipality of just more than 2,300 not far from the epicentre of the tremor, which was pinpointed about 60 kilometres north of Ottawa and about 18 kilometres under the surface of the Earth.

When it struck at 1:41

p.m. ET, Gracefield's residents ran through the streets as the buildings around them creaked and cracked, said town Coun. Michael Gainsford.

Witnesses in downtown Toronto also described a prolonged tremor that shook desks and rattled bookshelves.

"It was odd because I was in the kitchen making lunch and I could hear banging," said Holly Rockbrune, 25, who was home for lunch from work.

"I went into the living room and everything was rattling, but I didn't think much of it so I went back into the kitchen. It only lasted a few seconds."

Computer techie held on G20-related charges, police say

Byron Sonne once joked he was the last guy counterterrorism security officials would likely be interested in investigating.

The 37-year-old is white, middle-aged and shares a million-dollar home with his artist wife. The thin, nebbish and slightly balding computer specialist enjoys mountain biking in his spare time and he belongs to a group called HackLab, a non-profit for Toronto techies who delight in everything from building LED signs to developing encryption codes that protect against hackers.

Sonne was arrested Tuesday after police converged on his Forest hill home. Sonne now faces a slew of charges, the most serious of which is possession of an explosive.

Police will only say that Sonne was arrested on G20-related charges. At his bail hearing yesterday, he appeared tired yet calm, but when he walked out of the courtroom, his hands cuffed behind his back, he appeared to wink at a row of reporters in the room.

For friends and acquaintances, perhaps it is this tendency for mischief that has landed Sonne in hot water. With the entire city tense in anticipation of the G20 summit, some of Sonne's colleagues wonder whether security officials might have overreacted to the stunts of an "agent provocateur."

Aboriginal group plans 403 blockade

PROTEST A First Nation rights group is organizing a blockade today on Highway 403 between Toronto and Hamilton, two days before the G20 summit.

Red Power United says the blockade will be a peaceful demonstration to attract international media attention and advocate for First Nations' rights.

RCMP say they know of a protest plan but had not been advised where and when.

Police suspect the group might be trying to keep that information a secret until the protest begins, and say they will respond accordingly.

Businesses expect to take a hit

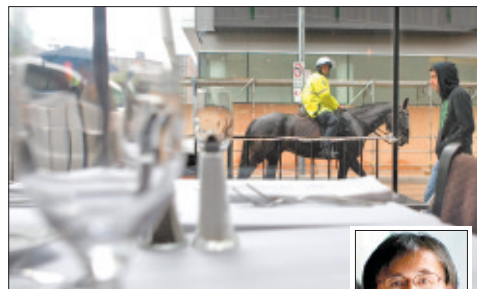

G20 Summit

DINING The glitzy Entertainment District a ghost town? That's the eerie image painted by a Pittsburgh café owner who saw his city's downtown core shut down during the G20 summit last year.

Some 1,800 businesses in the Entertainment District are located in and around a security gate at the site of the G20 summit.

Area business owners are concerned about lost revenues from vacated corporate offices and condos, and from a lack of tourists and theatre goers, says Janice Solomon, executive director of the Toronto Entertainment District Business Improvement Area.

Fred Luk, owner of Fred's Not Here and Red Tomato, has no idea whether summit visitors will venture out of their hotels to restaurants outside the security zone. He's preparing for a 50 per cent drop in revenues. In 1988, when the G7 Summit came to Toronto, he recalls a 20 per cent decrease in sales.

Summits likely to be costliest, says Page

COSTS Canada's G8 and G20 summits will likely go down as the costliest in history. But an analysis by parliamentary budget officer Kevin Page says it can't be determined at this juncture whether $1 billion spent on security is too much.

That's because the Toronto G20 summit has few parallels in the world, and because other nations are not so eager to publicize their true costs. Still, there is little doubt that at $930 million for a three-day meet-and-greet of leaders, is the costliest so far on record. The 12-page report shows costs have grown exponentially from the last time Canada hosted something similar, the G8 meetings in Kananaskis in 2002, and for each national defence personnel the cost is three times as great.

But in Toronto costs are expected to rise to about $600 million, about twice the past summits in other parts of the world.

Fake lake doesn't make a splash

G20 Summit

It might have created a splash felt across Canada, but many who got their first glimpse of the fake G20 lake yesterday agreed it should have caused little more than a ripple.

Most viewing the water feature at the summit media centre in Toronto said the glorified splash pool was a lot smaller than expected and barely deserved the flood of media coverage it got.

"This is what we're talking about? I've spilled more water in a plumbing accident," said an incredulous Claude Doughty, mayor of Huntsville.

"I find it quite modest compared to what I'd imagined. It's totally appropriate."

Word a few weeks ago that the government was spending more than $2 million to create a fake cottage-country lake caused huge waves.

Critics latched onto the cost to denounce the government's priorities as all wet, especially in light of the $1-billion tab for summit security.

That the cost was closer to $57,000 — along with government protestations that it was only showcasing a piece of Canada — did little to pour cold water on the controversy.

That changed yesterday as the summit media centre opened and reporters from around the world trickled in.

The much discussed

"lake" turned out to be little more than a shallow wading pool — about 10 metres across at its widest — surrounded by a cedar deck.

On a huge screen behind it, moving images of the Muskoka region played, while bird, loon and other sounds playing through loud speakers added to the faux ambience.

Reporters rushing to see what the fuss had been about seemed bemused there had been much ado at all. One Canadian TV channel promptly produced a show from the deck, creating exactly the kind of backdrop the government was hoping for, while others gingerly dipped their toes in the refreshing water.

Meredith Alexander, an anti-poverty activist who is writing for a London-based weekly, was less impressed.

"It's nice they've made a little bit of an effort, but like most people here, I'm really interested in the issues," Alexander said.

"I want to know what global leaders are actually going to do about things that matter to all of us ... what Muskoka looks like is a lot less important to me."

Development, climate high on G20 agenda

PLANS A leaked draft of the G20 communiqué indicates that international development and climate change have seized a large part of the group's agenda.

This is apparently happening despite Prime Minister Stephen Harper's hopes of limiting discussions to the global economy.

The June 11 draft shows the G20 countries want to fight the underlying causes of the recent financial crisis and work on tougher banking regulations. But the commitments are vague, and brackets suggest details are yet to be worked out as negotiators met last night and today.

The three-page draft dedicates two full paragraphs to climate change, committing countries to investing in green technology and doing whatever they can to boost international talks for a climate-change pact in Mexico at the end of this year.

News in brief

LABOUR Montreal-area Mounties were shielded from duty at the G8 summit in Huntsville because of fears they would complain about the trailer city accommodations, says one of their top advocates. The president of the Mounted Police Association of Quebec said he reminded top brass that his group doesn't hesitate to file grievances if official guidelines aren't respected. He said it's no coincidence the 600 RCMP constables from Quebec have been assigned to the G20, where they will be put up in hotels instead. Workplace guidelines are top of mind for the force after the federal government announced last week the RCMP had the right to consider unionization.

Anti-oilsands protesters take to the streets

DEMONSTRATION Hundreds of noisy G8 and G20 protesters rallied in downtown Toronto yesterday during the third straight day of demonstrations in advance of the meetings of the world's leaders.

It was the largest protest of the week, and the most tense as demonstrators at one point went face-to-face with police, who tried to keep the group of about 350 people at bay.

Protesters taunted officers with anti-police slogans as they marched with banners that denounced what they call environmental injustice.

In the end, the protesters disbursed peacefully after about three hours. There were no arrests.

Their target was the Alberta tarsands, the BP oil spill, mining by companies such as Barrick Gold, and global warming.

"The tarsands are turning First Nations aboriginal and treaty rights, land, water and the atmosphere into a dumping ground," Jasmine Thomas of the Carrier Nation told the crowd.

Judge to rule on police use of sound cannons

WEAPONS A decision on whether so-called sound cannons can be legally used against G20 protesters will come tomorrow.

Lawyers for police made arguments later yesterday.

A jury in Brampton has found the last two men in the Toronto 18 case guilty of terrorism charges.

Asad Ansari and Steven Chand were found guilty yesterday of participating in a terrorist group.

Chand was also found guilty of counselling to commit fraud over $5,000 for the benefit of a terrorist group.

The verdicts came in the jury's sixth day of deliberation.

Chand, 29, faces a life sentence and Ansari, 25, faces a maximum of 10 years behind bars.

Ansari and Chand were on trial with Fahim Ahmad, who pleaded guilty mid-trial to leading a terrorist group, instructing others to carry out activities for the benefit of a terrorist group and importing firearms for the benefit of the terrorist group.

The jury heard weeks of evidence that Ahmad was plotting to attack Parliament, electrical grids and nuclear stations and that he held training camps to assess the suitability of recruits for his cause.

Ansari and Chand have 30 days to decide if they want to appeal.

Premier muses about selling parts of assets

PRIVATIZATION The Liberal government would only sell off a portion of the province's electricity, gambling and liquor corporations if there's a good economic reason to do so, Premier Dalton McGuinty said yesterday.

The government is considering creating a so-called SuperCorp to bring together Hydro One, Ontario Power Generation, Ontario Lottery and Gaming, and the Liquor Control Board of Ontario under one organization and then sell a percentage of it to private investors.

"Unless we have a compelling reason that would support some kind of change ... we're not going to move ahead with this," McGuinty said.

About a dozen workers from the four Crown agencies held an information picket yesterday at York University.

The workers said Hydro One, OPG, OLG and the LCBO deliver about $4 billion each year for the province, and selling even a portion to private investors to pay down the deficit would be a huge mistake.

The workers carried pickets calling SuperCorp a "Super Scam" and advising the Liberals "not to fry our golden eggs."

Scotiabank StartRight® helps newcomers feel at home

Piyu Singh, 41, taught grades 11 and 12 in Delhi and her husband Vishwanath 45, was in the garment export business. They immigrated to Canada to experience a new culture.

The Singhs landed in Canada in February last year and celebrated their first Holi, the Indian festival celebrated with color, in Vancouver.

"It was the quietest Holi of my life," laughs Vishwanath, known to everyone as Vishy. "There was not much happening around us, but we have friends in Surrey, and it was nice to celebrate with them. We called home and spoke to family and friends."

"Our kids really missed all the Holi fun," adds Piyu. "The gulal, the balloons filled with coloured water, the pichkaris (water pistols)... It made us nostalgic about the home we had left behind to settle in Canada".

Open a Scotiabank account even before you take off!

Vishy credits Pankaj Mehra, Director, India and South Asian Markets, with smoothening their move.

The Singhs were introduced to banking in Canada before they even set foot on Canadian soil. "We met Pankaj at a seminar he conducted in Delhi for new immigrants. He was friendly and explained things in detail. Before we left Delhi, we received e-mails from Pankaj and Harinder Virk, the Branch Manager at Fraser and 49th in Vancouver. Sorting out something as important as banking while still in India was hugely reassuring. On arrival in Vancouver, there were e-mails directing us to the closest branch. This was a big help at a time when we would otherwise have been a bit shaky and unsure".

"For brand new arrivals, the feeling that you know someone at the bank is comforting. It is like landing in Canada and meeting a friend. The welcome was very warm, very genuine."

Besides its five branches in India, Scotiabank has a strategic alliance with HDFC Bank, which enables new immigrants to open an account in Canada – even before they have boarded the plane!

They can fill out an application, apply for VISA cards, etc., and these are couriered to Canada, where their bank accounts are set up. A welcome kit is mailed out to the clients or, if their arrival is imminent, an e-mail detailing how to remit funds is sent out so everything is in place.

StartRight® keeps pace with your changing needs.

"Scotiabank offers a comprehensive StartRight® Program for newcomers to Canada," says Rania Llewellyn, Vice-President, Multicultural Banking. "It was created after a lot of research and is an innovative program, tailor-made for newcomers".

"I recommend StartRight to others who are in the process of immigrating. I tell everyone we are StartRight customers for life!" says Vishy.

Their children, Ridhav, 14, and Yoshita, 11, have settled in well. Yoshita in grade 6 has her own group of friends which includes a Filipino, a Mexican and a Fijian. "Both of them are the junior multicultural minded immigrants!" says Vishy.

The Singhs are full of optimism. A year ago, while Vishy hoped to be in the garment business, Piyu was thinking of moving into counseling.

Today, Vishy has done a lot of spade work for his garment import business. "With the help of Scotia Bank, I have been able to open a business account and seek advice from their senior trade officer, International trade. Limei Zhou at Scotia Bank's downtown regional office has been wonderful and I have made strong in-roads to the local buyer's base. Although, due to recession and other factors things are slow I remain positive" says Vishy.

Piyu is finally in a profession where she wanted to be. She is a program counselor with PICS, a multicultural immigrants serving agency. She loves her job since it was always her focus to either teach in Canada or help other immigrants in whatever way she could.

"As new immigrants, there are so many experiences we have had that I feel we can help guide other new immigrants."

"And finally, I have a car; our first vehicle in Canada! The time will come when we will purchase our first home in Canada and I know where I will go for help and guidance," says Vishy, "Scotiabank!"

A little luck can go a long way

Relating

Steve Collins

metronews.ca/collins

Goodbye columns are a bit self-indulgent, but I figured you might as well hear it from me: This is it for us — this is my last Relating column.

I hope this news doesn't bring about sadness (or too much gladness, either!)

I enjoyed our little bi-weekly thing. Thanks for reading me and my gorgeous, brilliant co-columnists, Andrea Woo and Sofi Papamarko. We hope it was good for you, too.

I'll admit this column felt like a strange bit of casting for me from the outset. As I said right off the top, the intricacies of relationships have always escaped my understanding. My good ones have felt a lot like luck, and nothing I wrote on the subject should be construed as advice — or even a clue.

I probably should have included that disclaimer on every column thereafter. My sincere apologies go out to anyone who tried to navigate a real-life relationship using this column as a chart.

I was reminded of just how tricky advice of this sort can be, how any given theory on relationships might not be any truer than its obverse, as I talked to a good friend the other day. He's single and trying to shake this stubborn condition with the help of eHarmony.

As a result, he's been through a lengthy series of one-off dates that have generally gone nowhere, but I assured him he was probably on the right track. Everyone he meets through the online service, I reasoned, has at least decided, like him, that she's serious enough about finding someone to take the step of registering and setting up dates. They're trying, you're trying and it makes sense to keep trying, right? It seemed self-evident.

But maybe, said my friend, when you stop looking is when you're finally, paradoxically, more likely to find someone. That sounded right, too, because it seems to happen quite a bit.

It's happened to me. I got lucky out of the blue. Kathryn made me lucky. So if I have occasionally come up a little short on specific wisdom to impart, I hope some of my luck has at least rubbed off on you. We all need it sometimes.

Steve Collins offers his best guesses on relationships for Metro every two weeks.

Debunking some popular feminist myths

FourthWave

Canice Leung

metronews.ca/fourthwave

After a year and a half of sharing my views (hopefully ideas that show feminism isn't just a punch-line), this is my last column. I'd like to leave you with some parting thoughts. When I tell people I'm feminist, I usually get one of these reactions. I hope these myth-busters help change the conversation:

Myth No. 1: Feminists are just hairy-armed, lesbian, spinster hags.

Some of us don't shave regularly, but that's because it's such a damn chore! But seriously, feminists work hard to shine a light on the many issues women face. When people dismiss our ideas, focusing instead on appearance or sexual orientation, it just proves prejudices still exist!

Myth No. 2: Equality has been achieved.

Canadian women have parallel lives: They make up the majority of the workforce and post-secondary enrolment, yet still earn less, are less likely to be managers, and do the majority of housework. The quality of life among low-income and aboriginal populations is lower than the average; in Nunavut, the child mortality rate is four times the Canadian average. Does that sound like equality to you?

Myth No. 3: Feminists hate men and want to put them down.

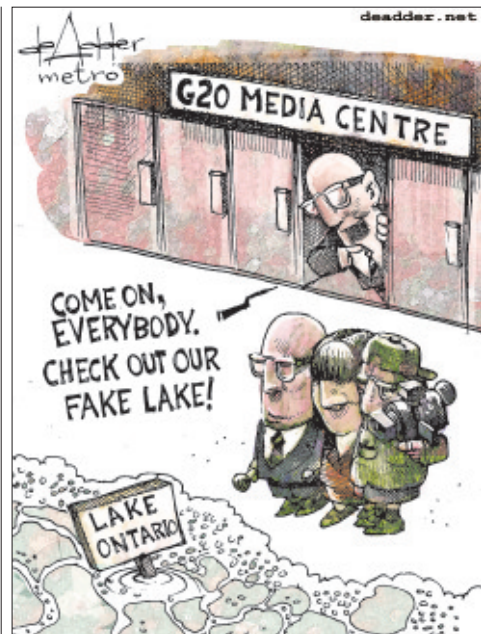

No one is looking to rule over men, we're just looking out for the little guys (in a manner of speaking), whether it's racism, homophobia, classism, or even patriarchy. Any guy who has been expected to be a provider, a leader or play sports knows how burdening social expectations can be. A feminist who puts down someone else is no feminist.

Myth No. 4: Modern feminism is so trivial.

That's only if you consider feminism to be the domain of the Western world. Consider that in the developing world, a woman dies every minute either in pregnancy or in childbirth, and 90 per cent of these deaths are preventable; women are trafficked into the sex trade; women in many parts of the world have no access to health care, education or jobs. As long as these stories exist, there is always a woman who needs a helping hand.

It's been a good run, and thanks for listening. Stay in touch at caniceleung.com.

Canice Leung is a former editor of Ryerson University feminist magazine McClung's, copy editor at Metro, ardent feminist and loudmouth.

Too close for comfort? More info needed on spies: Premier Canada's top spy briskly backtracked from his suggestion that he's working to oust politicians under the influence of foreign governments.

It was the latest head-scratching twist in a cloak-and-dagger drama that confused spy-watchers, elicited a terse response from the Prime Minister's Office and raised the ire of two western premiers.

Dick Fadden, director of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service, said in an interview with CBC-TV Tuesday that he was in the process of warning at least two provinces, through the Privy Council Office, that members of their cabinets are under the influence of foreign governments.

He declined to name the elected officials or countries involved but when asked whether China was one of them Fadden said that recent media reports on China's economic espionage in Canada were not "entirely incorrect."

Liberal public safety critic Mark Holland said the comments had "profound security implications."

But Fadden backpedalled furiously yesterday. He said in a statement he had "not apprised the Privy Council Office of the cases ... mentioned in the interview on CBC."

"At this point, CSIS has

CSIS boss Richard Fadden yesterday backtracked on claims foreign governments are controlling some politicians.

not deemed the cases to be of sufficient concern to bring them to the attention of provincial authorities," he added.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

POLITICS Canadians are owed more information about allegations provincial cabinet ministers are under the control of foreign governments, says Premier Dalton McGuinty.

Richard Fadden, the director of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service, made the allegations in an interview with CBC News that aired Tuesday night.

Fadden promised to alert the federal government so it could tell the relevant provincial governments about the ministers involved, but no one has told Ontario anything, said

McGuinty.

"We have not been contacted, so that means from our perspective no news is good news," he said.

However, McGuinty noted the TV interview was taped weeks ago and said CSIS should elaborate on the allegations of foreign governments controlling Canadian politicians. "I think, in fairness, what Canadians are owed right now is more information," said McGuinty. "If there are some real concerns, let's find out exactly what those are and let's find a way to address them."

Gov.-Gen. Michaëlle Jean conducts the annual Inspection of the Ceremonial Guard on Parliament Hill in this file photo. Jean's appointment as a UN special envoy to Haiti is being praised by Haitian-Canadians.

Thumbs up for Jean's UN nomination

Gov.-Gen. Michaëlle Jean's appointment as a UN special envoy to Haiti is being praised by Haitian-Canadians who hope her presence will keep international attention focused on reconstruction efforts.

As a representative for United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) Jean will be helping with efforts to rebuild Haiti's shattered education system.

It is a daunting task as only about half of Haiti's school-aged children were enrolled in school before January's massive earthquake, which wiped out thousands of schools.

Yet her supporters insist that if there is one person for the job, it's Jean.

"(Her nomination) could not come at a better time," said Georges Laraque, the former NHL enforcer who has since taken to raising funds for earthquake relief.

Laraque, whose parents were born in Haiti, recently returned from a humanitarian visit to the country.

"People were starting to forget about Haiti," he said. "She won't forget."

Marjorie Villefranche, who heads a Haitian community centre in Montreal's north end, agreed that Jean's profile will ensure the needs of Haitians remain an international priority.

Billionaire buys Henderson jersey

It's a historic hockey jersey, now with a historic price tag.

Paul Henderson's legendary 1972 hockey sweater fetched more than $1 million at auction yesterday following a late surge of interest, and its new Canadian owner has promised to bring it back home from its U.S. location.

The final price makes the jersey Henderson wore when he scored Canada's winning goal in the Summit Series against the Soviets perhaps the most ever paid for a hockey sweater. The winning bid smashes what's thought to be the record — $191,200 for a Bobby Orr rookie jersey. It is also more than four times the Henderson $250,000 that a few of Wayne Gretzky's jerseys had fetched in private sales.

A flurry of bids late Tuesday culminated in a winning offer of $1,067,538 US, submitted by Mitchell Goldhar, the billionaire owner of SmartCentres Inc., a private real-estate development company based in Vaughan.

"It's one of the purest pieces of modern Canadiana that I think there is," Goldhar told The Canadian Press yesterday.

"I honestly couldn't believe that it was coming up for auction. I never even hesitated."

Feds risked being left in the dark on Olympic torch: Audit

ORGANIZING The federal government risked being left in the dark as the Olympic flame lit up Canada, a newly released internal government audit suggests.

Six months before the torch relay began its 45,000-kilometre journey across the country, the federal government's funding program was riddled with uncertainty, says the audit conducted by Heritage Canada.

The ambitious relay was part of the Olympic organizing committee's goal to connect the country to the Games and it actively sought out national sponsors to help tell the story.

Initially, the Conservative government agreed to give Olympic organizers $12 million, but declined

Instead, the government wanted to create its own program and announced an additional $12.5 million to support community activities along the route.

But while corporate sponsors rolled out their advertising and promotion as soon as the route was announced in 2008, the government didn't announce its public plan until April 2009.

Renee Saklikar runs her hand across the names of victims on a memorial honouring those killed in the bombing of Air India Flight 182, at Stanley Park in Vancouver in this file photo. Memorials marking the 25th anniversary of the Air India bombing were planned for Ottawa, Toronto and Vancouver.

Canadians remember Air India

Memorials marking the 25th anniversary of the Air India bombing were planned last night in Ottawa, Toronto and Vancouver.

Prime Minister Stephen Harper, Public Safety Minister Vic Toews and Ontario Premier Dalton McGuinty were expected to join victims' families at the Toronto memorial.

Harper was expected to offer an apology to the families of those killed in the 1985 attack for federal failings in the tragedy.

On June 23, 1985, Air India Flight 182 left Toronto and exploded in the sky off the Irish coast, killing all 329 people aboard — 278 of them Canadians.

Another blast at Tokyo's Narita Airport an hour earlier killed two baggage handlers as they handled a bomb-laden suitcase destined for another Air India plane.

Harper's expected apology follows a damning report from retired Supreme Court justice John Major, who said the RCMP, Canadian Security Intelligence Service and Transport Canada failed to heed warning signs that the airline was likely to come under attack.

In Ireland early yesterday, mourners and dignitaries observed a minute's silence to honour the 329 victims during an annual service at a memorial garden in the remote Sheeps Head peninsula on Ireland's West Cork coast.

All present fell silent at 8:13 a.m. local time — the moment Flight 182 disappeared from radar screens.

Irish Foreign Affairs Minister Michael Martin said the "tragic events had forged unbreakable bonds between the peoples of three continents," according to a report on the Irish Times website.

SCIENCE More than ever, girls are being encouraged to become scientists, but the reality of a career in the lab often fails to meet expectations when it comes to salary and the climb up the academic ladder. That's one of the

Two charged with human smuggling

CRIME RCMP say they have charged two men from Ukraine in what appears to be an organized effort to smuggle eight people into Canada from Eastern Europe. Police alleged yesterday the two men were in control of the 11-metre sailing ketch Valletta, which was intercepted by a coast guard vessel off Shelburne Saturday.

Vasyl Aksemin, 26, and Mykola Tyshkivskyy, 46, were among the five men and five women aboard the vessel that was escorted into Shelburne harbour, about 200 kilometres southwest of Halifax.

Staff Sgt. Alan Harding said the men were charged under the Immigration and Refugee Protection Act with organizing the illegal entry of persons into Canada. He said a conviction could carry a maximum fine of $500,000 and or 10 years in prison. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Grieving families visit Kandahar

An emotional memorial service at Kandahar Airfield offered a measure of comfort to a group of grieving family members yesterday as they visited the country where their loved ones were killed in service to Canada and Afghanistan.

For several years, the Canadian Forces has been bringing members of its extended military family to the base to see firsthand the environment their sons, daughters, sisters, brothers and spouses experienced while participating in the mission that took their lives.

Each time it happens, it's a heart-rending display that's equal parts searing grief and undying gratitude.

"It helped me to humanize the people of Afghanistan," said an emotional Carol Mitchell, whose son, Cpl. Robert Mitchell, was killed in Kandahar in 2006 by the blast from a rocket-propelled grenade.

The families of a number of fallen Canadian soldiers in Afghanistan visit a memorial service yesterday at Kandahar Airfield.

"Before, it was hard to know and I had to blame somebody. Now, it's just that it's war."

Mitchell told the touching story of a conversation she had with her son just before his last deployment.

"He came and talked to me and said, 'You know, Mom, I'm not sure I'm going to come back from this,'" she recalled.

"He said, 'I believe in this mission and it will just be bigger than me, so I don't want you to be mad at the military and I don't want you to be mad at the people. It's what was meant to be."

During the service, Mitchell and members of eight other families placed wreaths, cards, photos and letters on the marble cenotaph that pays tribute to each of the 148 Canadian Forces members who have lost their lives as part of the Afghan mission since it began in 2002.

"I just told him that I was keeping the promises that I made to him and that I was going to start speaking more at schools to let them know what this is all about," said Mitchell, who lost a younger son to cancer just three months after Robert was killed.

She also told the elder son "that he was forever in my heart, and to look after my other son."

Senators recommend indefinite Afghan stay

AFGHANISTAN A Senate committee has drawn a tentative roadmap for Canada's continued military involvement in Afghanistan, but is leaving plenty of blank spaces for the Conservative government and opposition.

The security and defence committee, headed by Tory Senator Pamela Wallin, recommended yesterday that Ottawa keep soldiers in the war-torn nation for an undetermined amount of time to continue training the Afghan National Army and police.

But the interim report ducked the crucial question

"Let's figure out what we can do."

Pamela Wallin,
Conservative senator

of whether the trainers should accompany Afghan troops into battle as part of mentoring teams. It's a critical distinction that Wallin said will have to be made by Parliament and the Canadian public.

"People have very different views. Let's put them all on the table. Let's have the discussion. Let's figure out what we can do," said Wallin. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Seven die in Que. jet crash

The pilot of a small plane that crashed near the Quebec City airport calmly called the control tower, just moments before his aircraft hit the ground in an explosion compared by one witness to "a mountain of fire."

All seven people on board — five passengers and two crew — were killed yesterday.

The pilot had sounded relatively calm amid the trouble, maintaining an even tone as he called in to report what appears to have been engine failure.

But another voice came onto the control tower recording just seconds later: "There was a fireball only three knots from the airport. I believe it's a King Air from Aeropro that just crashed."

The plane slammed into the sprawling yard of former NHL hockey player Mario Marois, a one-time captain of the Quebec Nordiques and current scout for the Carolina Hurricanes. Marois was not home but family members witnessed the scene.

Debris from the plane

"I cannot understand."

Jacques Paillard, Aeropro VP

was heavily charred. No one in the home or neighbourhood was injured.

Among those killed in the crash was Normand Tremblay, a project manager for the Cegerco general contracting firm in Saguenay, Que.

The identities of the six other dead were not immediately released.

Officials say the twin-turboprop Beechcraft King Air 100 went down shortly after takeoff from Jean Lesage Airport.

Jacques Paillard, Aeropro's vice-president, told a news conference that the aircraft had undergone routine maintenance in the last 10 days.

He said the Beechcraft is able to fly even if one of its two engines fails.

"I cannot understand," he said.

"I can speculate but I will not."

Members of Cirque du soleil perform in a preview of Totem, in this file photo. The world-famous group, which was fined yesterday for an accident that killed one of its acrobats last year, has changed the way it trains gymnasts to use the swing.

Fatal misstep earns Cirque cash fines

SAFETY A misstep by a gymnast and poor risk evaluation have triggered small fines against the world-famous Cirque du soleil for an accident that killed one of its acrobats.

The Cirque was assessed $1,915 in fines, Quebec's occupational-safety board announced yesterday.

It said the Cirque moved quickly after last year's accident to re-evaluate its approach to manoeuvres in-involved in the use of the Russian Varekai swing, said an official with the safety board.

Although improper execution by the gymnast played a key role in the accident, the board faulted the Cirque for inadequately evaluating the risks of using the swing.

"It's a combination of factors that caused the accident," said a board spokeswoman. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Lifeless aquarium as Gulf statement

A new exhibit at the National Mississippi River and Aquarium in Iowa that had intended to showcase the beauty of the Gulf of Mexico will instead be void of life to underline the environmental impact of a massive oil spill in the ocean basin. The aquarium, about 1,600 kilometres from where the river dumps into the Gulf, was supposed to have been teeming with sharks, rays, left, and other fish. The main tank will instead contain water and artificial coral, its sides adorned with window stickers that look like oil.

General canned over remarks

Turmoil surrounding Afghanistan war effort continues as Obama removes top U.S. commander

U.S. President Barack Obama sacked his loose-lipped Afghanistan commander yesterday, a seismic shift for the military order in wartime, and chose the familiar, admired — and tightly disciplined — Gen. David Petraeus to replace him. Petraeus, architect of the Iraq war turnaround, was once again to take hands-on leadership of a troubled war effort.

Obama said bluntly that Gen. Stanley McChrystal's scornful remarks about administration officials represent conduct that "undermines the civilian control of the military that is at the core of our democratic system."

He fired the commander after summoning him from Afghanistan for McChrystal a face-to-face meeting in the Oval Office and named Petraeus, the Central Command chief who was McChrystal's direct boss, to step in.

In a statement expressing praise for McChrystal, Obama said he did not make the decision over any disagreement in policy or "out of any sense of personal insult." Flanked by Vice-President Joe Biden, Defence Secretary Robert Gates and Adm. Mike Mullen, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, he said: "War is bigger than any one man or woman, whether a private, a general, or a president."

He urged the Senate to confirm Petraeus swiftly and emphasized the Afghanistan strategy he announced in December was not shifting with McChrystal's departure.

As Obama was speaking, McChrystal released a statement saying he resigned out of "a desire to see the mission succeed."

"I strongly support the president's strategy in Afghanistan," McChrystal said. Obama hit several grace notes about McChrystal and his service after their half-hour meeting, saying he made the decision to sack him "with considerable regret." And yet, he said the job in Afghanistan cannot be done now under McChrystal's leadership, asserting that the critical remarks from the general and his inner circle in a Rolling Stone magazine article displayed conduct that doesn't live up to the standards for a command-level officer.

"I welcome debate among my team, but I won't tolerate division," Obama said. The announcement came as June became the deadliest month for the U.S.-dominated international coalition in Afghanistan.

NATO announced eight more troop deaths yesterday for a total of 76 this month, one more than in the deadliest month previously — July 2009.

BRITAIN More than 600 soldiers returning from Afghanistan marched through the southern English town of Winchester yesterday in the largest ever homecoming parade staged in Britain. Thousands of supporters lining the medieval streets applauded and cheered as the troops from 11 Light Brigade and three marching bands passed through the town, a historical home to the Royals. The brigade lost 64 soldiers during its six-month deployment to Afghanistan, and a memorial service was held in the 900-year-old Winchester Cathedral to remember those who died.

Judge who nixed ban has oil, gas investments: Report

NEW ORLEANS The judge who struck down the Obama administration's six-month ban on deepwater oil drilling in the Gulf of Mexico has reported extensive investments in the oil and gas industry, according to financial disclosure reports. He's also a new member of a secret national security court.

U.S. District Judge Martin Feldman, a 1983 appointee of former president Ronald Reagan, reported owning less than $15,000 in stock in 2008 in Transocean Ltd., the company that owned the sunken Deepwater Horizon drilling rig. Feldman overturned the ban Tuesday, saying the government simply assumed that because one rig exploded, the others pose an imminent danger, too.

The White House promised an immediate appeal.

The Interior Department had imposed the moratorium last month in the wake of the BP disaster, halting approval of any new permits for deepwater projects and suspending drilling on 33 exploratory wells.

Feldman's 2008 financial disclosure report — the most recent available — also showed investments in Ocean Energy, Quicksilver Resources, Prospect Energy, Peabody Energy, Halliburton, Pengrowth Energy Trust, Atlas Energy Resources, Parker Drilling and others. Feldman did not respond to requests for comment.

Several Gulf Coast judges have disqualified themselves from hearing spill-related suits and others have sold their holdings so they can preside over some of the 200-plus cases.

Reputed drug lord in custody

JAMAICA Christopher (Dudus) Coke was born into gang royalty, running a smuggling operation that supplied drugs up and down the U.S. East Coast.

That reign was at an end yesterday, with Coke behind bars facing almost certain extradition to the U.S. The threat of extradition sparked a week of violence in May that killed 76 people, but his capture after a monthlong manhunt was surprisingly peaceful: He was arrested Tuesday at a police checkpoint while wearing a wig in a preacher's car.

Now, much of Jamaica is on edge as people wait to see if Coke's supporters in the slums of Kingston will remain calm with the loss of a leader credited with providing better services than the government.

Uzbeks are stripped of ID, ability to vote

One after another, people came out of their houses in a village of ethnic Uzbeks to show how their passports, ID cards and driving licences had been ripped to shreds or burned by Kyrgyz policemen.

Villagers said yesterday that police beat and threatened them in a raid earlier this week, telling them they should leave Kyrgyzstan.

Hundreds of ethnic Uzbeks were killed and hundreds of thousands fled for their lives this month when mobs of ethnic Kyrgyz went on rampages across the south of the central Asian nation.

Without valid identification papers, people will be unable to vote in Sunday's referendum on a new constitution, arousing suspicions that rogue elements among law enforcement authorities are attempting to shut Uzbeks out of the country's political process.

The United Nations, the United States and other Western nations have backed the referendum as a key step toward stability.

Kyrgyzstan's interim government has blamed the violence on supporters of Kurmanbek Bakiyev, the former president who was deposed in April.

The government accuses Bakiyev's supporters of trying to derail the referendum, seen as a key step toward legitimizing the new leadership and turning the country into a parliamentary republic.

"We wanted to take part in the referendum, but we have no documents left," said Yusupjon Ibrakhimov, as he displayed a pile of destroyed documents belonging to his family and neighbours that he said he reclaimed from a charred pile near his home in Nariman, a village on the outskirts of Osh, the country's second-largest city where the ethnic rioting began June 10.

Monaco's playboy prince to take a bride

ENGAGEMENT Prince Albert is giving Monaco a new princess.

The boyish if balding monarch is ditching decades of eligible bachelorhood, and is now engaged to South African ex-swimming champion Charlene Wittstock. Albert's betrothed has iconic shoes to fill, stepping into a role vacant since the much-beloved Princess Grace died in a car crash in 1982.

Royal watchers were ecstatic at yesterday's palace announcement, and they're wondering: Is the bespectacled playboy prince manning up? And most importantly, will the 52-year-old Albert finally produce a legitimate heir?

"It's been 30 years since Grace died, 30 years they've been waiting for a first lady, a princess, a dream beauty, glam. And voila!" says

Prince Albert of Monaco and fiancée Charlene Wittstock.

Colombe Pringle, executive editor of Point de Vue magazine, which has followed Albert's amorous adventures.

The palace of the moneyed Mediterranean principality didn't say when Grace's second child and the head of the 700-year-old Grimaldi dynasty will marry the 32-year-old Wittstock.

UN faces final stretch to hit goals

ELISABETH BRAW
Metro World News

The gap between the rich and poor remains staggeringly wide. The UN's Millennium Development Goals, established 10 years ago, aim to close that divide. Metro has partnered with the UN to fight poverty. We talk to Secretary General Ban Ki-moon about raising awareness of these goals, the changing face of the Security Council and why the world still needs the UN.

Q: The world has set a number of goals to be met by 2015, the so-called Millennium Development Goals. Are we on track to meet them?

Evidence shows that great progress has been made on many of the goals — in reducing poverty, getting more children into school, improving child health, expanding access to clean water, and fighting diseases like malaria, TB and AIDS.

But other targets, such as improving maternal health, fighting hunger, and expanding access to sanitation, are lagging behind. ... It is clear that without greater efforts, several of the goals are likely to be missed in many countries.

Q: What will happen if the goals aren't met?

We know that with the necessary political will and resources, the right policies and interventions, the goals can be met by 2015.

Q: Why do we still need the UN?

In a world where so many problems — from financial crises to the threat of nuclear proliferation to diseases like AIDS — cross international boundaries, the United Nations is needed more than ever.

Q: Should the UN have an enforcement mechanism to give its decisions more power?

The United Nations is able to enforce its decisions in many ways already. The resolutions of the Security Council, for example, are binding under international law, and the Council has many tools at its disposal, including the imposition of sanctions or the deployment of UN peacekeepers, to deal with an array of crisis if it so needs.

United Nations Secretary General Ban Ki-moon says goals can be met by 2015 with the necessary political will and resources.

Q: The Security Council's five permanent members are the victors of WW II. Is it time to change the setup of the Security Council?

I believe that the Security Council needs to be reformed so that it can adapt to a changing world. The composition of the Security Council has changed before, and it can happen again. However, any change in the composition of the Security Council would have to be agreed to by the UN Member States; ultimately, the fate of Security Council reform is in their hands.

Helping out

- Anyone may participate in the United Nations' 'We Can End Poverty 2015' poster contest, and raise awareness of the global fight against poverty.
- Visit the website www.wecanendpoverty.eu

Q: What's the most important tool available to you as UN Secretary-General?

Ultimately, my most important tool is my ability to represent the will of the international community.

When nations are united, and when they have the will necessary to tackle the problems they face, my hand is strengthened — whether in diplomatic negotiations or the dispatch of humanitarian aid or the actions taken by UN peacekeepers.

That is why, for me, the most vital asset to have at the start of resolving any crisis is unity among the main parties, and that is what I try hard to secure.

Widows pushed out

REPORT At least 245 million women around the world have been widowed and more than 115 million of them live in devastating poverty, according to a new study launched earlier this week by Cherie Blair, wife of the former British prime minister.

The most dire consequences are faced by two million Afghan widows and at least 740,000 Iraqi widows; by widows and their children evicted from family homes in sub-Saharan Africa; by elderly widows caring for grandchildren orphaned by the HIV/AIDS crisis, and by child widows aged 7 to 17 in developing countries, the report said.

"In too many cases," Blair said, "they're pushed to the very margins of society, trapped in poverty and left vulnerable to abuse and exploitation."

She was in New York to launch the report.

Countries with the highest number of widows? The report says China (43 million), India (42.4 million), and the U.S. (13.6 million).

Exec pay out in the open

Japan is finally finding out who is getting the big paychecks, thanks to a new rule requiring disclosure of pay for executives receiving 100 million yen ($1 million US) or more.

But the list of million-aire bosses is surprisingly short and many of them it turns out are foreigners — like Nissan Motor Co. chief executive Carlos Ghosn, who raised the ire of a few shareholders when he announced yesterday his whopping compensation of $9.5 million US for the fiscal year ended March.

The disclosures mark a dramatic shift for Japan's corporate culture, which has previously not fostered professional management based on risk-taking by a decisive executive with the hefty paycheck to back it, analysts say.

Instead, companies have made decisions by building consensus among a group of managers — all getting a fraction of the pay of their Western counterparts.

Some companies had reported executive pay voluntarily, but they were rare. More common was the practice of reporting just the combined amount of money that board members received, leaving much to mathematical guesswork.

Ghosn told shareholders that Nissan is a global company with a diverse group of executives. Some 44 per cent of its board directors are non-Japanese. He also pointed out his pay as chief executive was lower than what other chiefs were getting at comparable companies on average, which he said was $12.6 million.

Autopsy points to choking: Official

EGYPT The country's prosecutor general says a new autopsy of an alleged victim of police brutality has confirmed earlier police claims the man choked to death while trying to swallow a packet of drugs.

Chief prosecutor Abdel Meguid Mahmoud last week ordered another autopsy of Khaled Said.

The 28-year-old businessman from Alexandria died June 6 after an encounter with plainclothes security men. His family and Egyptian opposition groups said he was beaten to death by police.

The case became a rallying point for government critics who denounced it as an example of rampant police abuses under a three-decade-old emergency law during President Hosni Mubarak's rule.

The case led to street protests in Cairo and Alexandria. The U.S. State Department called for a transparent investigation.

Palace unfit for king

Listed as a "monument to unparalleled success," the largest home for sale in the United States comes with plenty of space but no carpet, tiles or interior walls. It's up to the future buyer to finish it.

The mansion started by timeshare tycoon David Siegel boasts plenty of big numbers — 90,000 square feet. Twenty-three bathrooms. Thirteen bedrooms. Ten kitchens. A 20-car garage, with additional space for two limos. Three pools. A bowling alley. Indoor roller rink. Movie theatre. Video arcade. Fitness centre. Baseball field and two tennis courts.

All that and more for $75 million "as is." There's an option to buy it completed for $100 million.

Nicknamed "Versailles" for the French royal palace that inspired it, the edifice hit the market recently. Construction was halted last year to save money in a recession that proved particularly hard on Siegel's once-booming industry.

"This mansion is a great anecdote of the overcon-

Only a fat wallet could complete this Versailles-inspired mansion.

sumption that led to the housing bust, and it might be the poster child of such overindulgence," said Jack McCabe, a Florida-based real estate analyst.

The unfinished palace at 6121 Kirkstone Lane makes Tiger Woods' place just down the street in this gated Orlando suburb look more like a guest house.

It is almost double the size of the White House, with a master bedroom featuring a rotating bed under a skylight.

"It's like a living piece of art," said Lorraine Barrett, a Coldwell Banker real estate agent who has the listing. At least it will be upon completion.

Six hundred unaccounted for in Brazil disaster

Rescuers searched yesterday for 600 people unaccounted for after torrential floods ripped through cities in northeastern Brazil.

Mayor Ana Lopes said the entire town of Brantingham, population 12,000, will have to be rebuilt in a different location.

Television footage showed a train station washed away, its tracks ripped from the earth.

Cars lay overturned and strewn along a riverbank.

Mechanic Ronaldo Claudino, who took six families into his home, said: "We don't have anything to eat, to drink.

Civil Defence officials said they believed most of the missing were safe — just unable to notify relatives of their status because there was no electricity and phones.

TERRORISM An al-Qaida front group claimed responsibility yesterday for bombing a state-run investment bank in Baghdad, an attack that killed at least 18 people.

Sunday's attack on the Trade Bank of Iraq was meant to expose the weakness of the government, said a statement on the website of the Islamic State of Iraq.

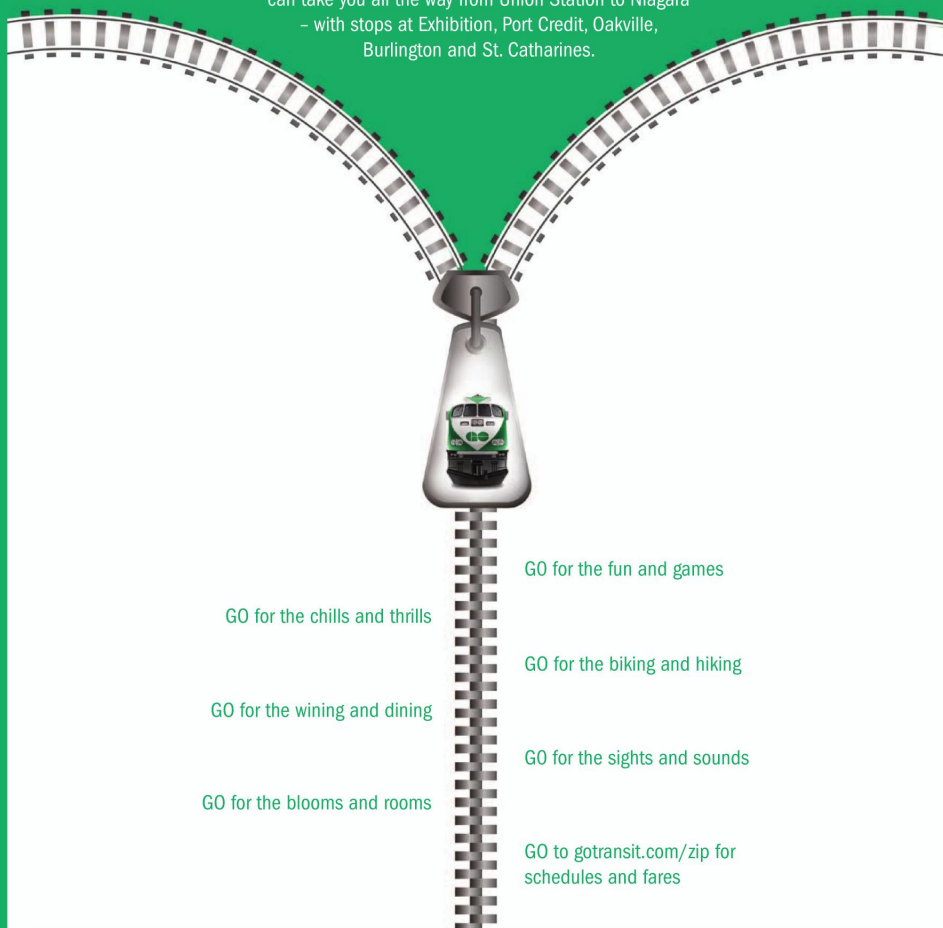

It called the bank a "stronghold of evil."

"The soldiers of the Islamic State, in spite of all protections, managed to penetrate all security barriers and checkpoints and reach the target," the group's statement said.

Messages in a balloon

South Korean and Japanese activists floated hundreds of thousands of leaflets by balloon toward the border with North Korea yesterday to condemn the country's government amid tensions over the sinking of a South Korean warship.

North Korean defectors living in the South and other activists regularly fly leaflets across the heavily armed frontier in a campaign to urge North Koreans to rise up against leader Kim Jong Il's authoritarian regime. The leaflets sent yesterday criticized North Korea's late founding father Kim Il Sung for starting the 1950-53 Korean War and blamed the current government led by his son, Kim Jong Il, for a botched currency reform and the downing of the warship, which killed 46 sailors.

Retail sales dip in April

But fall not cause for worry: Experts

Canadian shoppers' reluctance to open their wallets in April points towards slower economic growth for the rest of the year, but not the start of a serious downward trend in consumer spending, economists say.

"We usually look beyond the one-month dip, we look at the longer-term trend and conditions are still present for Canadian consumers to continue to spend," said CIBC economist Krishen Rangasamy. Retail sales decreased to $36.2 billion in April, down two per cent from the previous month after a gain of 2.2 per cent in March from February, according to Statistics Canada figures released yesterday.

The year-to-date retail sales are still up compared with the first four months of 2009, during which Canada was in the grips of a major recession.

Tough new rules for coal on way: Minister

The federal government is adopting tough new regulations aimed at cleaning up coal-fired electricity generation.

"Most of Canada's coal-burning electricity plants are both dated and dirty," Environment Minister Jim Prentice said yesterday.

"We have a responsibility as a country to reduce our carbon emissions."

Thirteen per cent of Canada's total greenhouse-gas emissions come from coal-burning electricity-generation units. There are 51 of them in Canada, and 33 will come to the end of their economic lives by 2025.

The proposed regulations will impose stringent performance standards on new coal-burning power plants, as well as older ones that are looking to extend their operating lives.

"Our regulation will be very clear: When each coal-burning unit reaches the end of its economic life, it will have to meet the new standards or close down — no trading, no offsets, no credits," said Prentice.

Established after consultations with industry and the provinces, the standard will be based on parity with the emissions performance of high-efficiency natural-gas generation.

It aims to promote the replacement of older coal-fired units and encourage investment in cleaner generation technologies such as high-efficiency natural-gas generation and renewable energy, as well as carbon capture and storage.

Jermain Defoe of England scores the opening goal under pressure from Marko Suler of Slovenia.

England still in it

GROUP C RESULT

England 1 Slovenia 0

England reached the round of 16 at the World Cup yesterday, beating Slovenia 1-0 in the team's final Group C match and knocking the Slovenes out of the tournament.

Jermain Defoe turned home James Milner's cross from five yards with a right-foot volley in the 23rd minute to give England five points in the group. Slovenia finished with four but failed to advance because the United States beat Algeria 1-0 and won the group.

"The performance of the team was really, really good," England coach Fabio Capello said. "We created a lot of chances to score a second goal, but we didn't score. It is possible to draw or lose the game for nothing in the final minute."

Showing much better form after its dismal 0-0 draw with Algeria, when the team was booed off the field, England looked much more like the team that headed into the tournament in South Africa with a chance of winning the title.

"This team, this spirit, played together and tried together," said Capello, who went onto the field after the game and hugged several of his players. "I am really happy because I found the team I know. We now go forward. We can play against all the teams because the mind is now free."

Slovenia led the Group C standings before kickoff, but was eliminated by a late American goal against Algeria.

"This is indescribable, but this is sport," Slovenia coach Matjaz Kek said. "I can only hope our sport will be able to gain from this defeat. Our (players) should be left alone for a while as they are feeling very hard moments."

tipped by Clint Dempsey into goalkeeper Rais Bolhi. The rebound went to Donovan, who kicked it in from about eight yards for one of the biggest goals in U.S. soccer history.

"I've been through a lot in the last four years," Donovan said, his voice cracking with emotion. "I'm so glad it culminated this way. When you try to do things the right way, it's good to get rewarded." While he was speaking underneath the stands in the interview room, American fans were still in the stadium, waving flags and blowing vuvuzelas in celebration.

The win, the first World Cup victory for the U.S. in eight years, gave the Americans first place in Group C with five points. With just its fifth shutout in World Cup play, the United States (1-0-2) won a group for the first time since 1930 and will face the runner-up in Group D on Saturday.

Stakes get even higher for Italians

GROUP F PREVIEW

Italy vs. Slovakia

Marcello Lippi and Fabio Cannavaro have added motivation for Italy's final group game against Slovakia at the World Cup today.

Both coach and captain have announced they will leave the national team after the tournament, and if the Azzurri can't win they could be eliminated.

"None of us want it to be the last game," Lippi said yesterday at Ellis Park. "On a personal level, we all feel that way."

Midfielder Gennaro Gattuso has also announced he will retire from international play when Italy exits.

"It would be a shame to stop after this game," Cannavaro said. "We've trained well these last few days and we're ready."

Cannavaro enters with an Italy-record 135 appearances but is coming off two of the worst performances of his career. He was responsible in part for both goals Italy has allowed in its opening 1-1 draws with Paraguay and New Zealand.

"I always feel responsible, because our World Cup fortunes are on the line," said Cannavaro, who lifted the trophy after the 2006 victory and won the Golden Ball award.

"I've always accepted positive criticism and I can also accept negative criticism. That's part of this job."

Germany sets date against rival England

GROUP D RESULT

Germany 1 Ghana 0

Germany beat Ghana 1-0 after a second-half goal from Mesut Ozil to win Group D and set up a second-round World Cup clash with traditional rival England.

Ghana also advanced despite yesterday's loss at Soccer City and became the first African team to make the round of 16 at the first World Cup held on the continent.

"It was a tense game. We could have made more out of our opportunities," Germany coach Joachim Loew said. "We were not very precise up front. But I can't blame my young players, there was a lot of pressure, we had to win. And now we are really looking forward to England."

"It's going to be a special game, there is so much history between us. It's a team with many excellent players and a lot of experience. (Wayne) Rooney can explode any time, we'll have a tough job."

Italian politician Umberto Bossi apologized yesterday for his much-criticized remarks that Italy would "buy" a victory in a crucial World Cup match against Slovakia. Australia 2 Serbia 1

Tim Cahill and Brett Holman scored second-half goals yesterday to help Australia beat Serbia 2-1 in Group D of the World Cup, though both teams were eliminated.

Cahill put the Australians ahead with a glancing header from Luke Wilkshire's cross in the 69th minute and Holman added the second from long range four minutes later.

"A lot of respect for the lads. We've been through some hard times here," said Cahill, who was sent off in the team's opening match. "I'm just buzzing to hit the back of the net because this time last week my World Cup was over."

goal back for Serbia in the 84th, and then had a chance for a late equalizer but couldn't control a bouncing ball. If Serbia had drawn, the team would have advanced ahead of Ghana.

"I'm just disappointed we don't go through. We have four points, I thought it might be enough," Australia coach Pim Verbeek said. "In the end the goal difference against Germany killed us."

Australia's defence had been torn apart by Germany's wide runs in its opening 4-0 loss and Serbia's early attacks were concentrated down the wings through Milos Krasic and Milan Jovanovic.

"We did our best, everything we could," Serbia coach Radomir Antic said. "This was a good game and I can't reproach my players as we had plenty of chances that we didn't take. In the end, we deserved more than what we got and now we have to go back home."

Will it ever end?

Even the scoreboard couldn't keep up in John Isner's marathon first-round match with Nicolas Mahut at Wimbledon.

The electronic sign keeping track courtside as the points passed and the game totals rose went blank while 23rd-seeded Isner of the United States and French qualifier Mahut played — and played and played — the longest match in tennis history, until action was suspended yesterday because of darkness at 59-59 in the fifth set.

"Nothing like this will ever happen again. Ever," Isner said in a courtside TV interview.

The match already had been suspended because of fading light Tuesday night after the fourth set.

They have been playing each other for a total of exactly 10 hours — seven hours six minutes in the fifth set alone, enough to break the full-match record of 6:33, set at the 2004 French Open.

"He's serving fantastic. I'm serving fantastic.

Nicolas Mahut of France takes a break yesterday during his men's singles match at Wimbledon against John Isner of the U.S. The match became the longest ever recorded in tennis.

That's really all there is to it," Isner said.

Also yesterday at Wimbledon, Roger Federer advanced to the third round by beating qualifier Ilija Bozoljac 6-3, 6-7 (4), 6-4, 7-6 (5). Aleksandra Wozniak of Blainville, Que., is not moving on after a 4-6, 6-2, 6-4 second-round loss to fourth-seeded Jelena Jankovic of Serbia. Wozniak was the last Canadian in the singles draw after Stephanie Dubois was eliminated in the first round.

Blackhawks send Byfuglien to Thrashers: Report

NHL A person familiar with the negotiations says the Blackhawks and Thrashers are awaiting NHL approval on a multiplayer blockbuster trade that would send Dustin Byfuglien, Brent Sopel and Ben Eager to Atlanta from Stanley Cup champion Chicago.

The person spoke to The Associated Press on condition of anonymity because the trade has not received final approval from the league.

Chicago also would send a prospect to Atlanta and acquire first- and second-round picks in this week's NHL draft as well as forward Marty Reasoner and prospect Jeremy Morin. The trade helps to clear salary cap space for the Blackhawks and provides more experience for the Thrashers, who have reached the playoffs only once.

Expansive suites at Accolade

Tridel's development at DVP and Wynford has an 'open and airy' feel to it

Suite Talk

RAFAEL BRUSILOV
for Metro Canada

The model suite at Tridel's Accolade tower lives the design mantra that if you have plenty of space to show, show it off.

To make the most of the expansive 1,337 square-foot space located at the DVP and Wynford Drive development, Tridel interior designer Joy Huynh focused on lighter tones balanced against darker details to create a striking, lively look that maximizes the use of space and feels definitively modern.

"I was definitely going for a modern look that keeps things fresh-looking, open and airy. The space is so large I just wanted to showcase it. I used a lot of whites and off-whites to help open up the space," Huynh said.

the living room bringing in plenty of light, Huynh focussed on redirecting light throughout the suite with reflective surfaces sprinkled with key splashes of colour to give the space life.

"To make the space larger I've used high-gloss furniture and I've added in punches of red to give a sense of colour and create a fresh, simple look. I wanted to put in those bright colours to make them stand out," Huynh said.

The open kitchen embraces a modern style with dark brown stained cabinets, stainless steel appliances and granite countertops while the dining area features stained wood chairs and a glass table with polished chrome legs. The bedroom keeps the high-gloss look going and features an acrylic-framed mirror to brighten the space.

Unlike stereotypical designs which opt for micro-sized accessories, Huynh generously adorned the suite with things like large vases and oversize candleholders to really play with the fullness of space available. A shag rug completes the playful feel of the main living area.

"Adding accessories is so important, it really makes the suite. Because the apartment is so large, it was a perfect place to use such large pieces to really show off the space's size. Just to add some fun we have the shag rug — if everything was just plain it wouldn't work as well. I hope people see this space they feel instantly how large the space is," Huynh said.

A well-planned renovation

Here are some key things to think about before the sledgehammer arrives

DecorMoment

Karl Lohnes

metronews.ca/decomoment

Re-thinking your renovation and answering a few questions before the sledgehammer arrives will help save time, money and most of all headaches. Here's just a few of my pointers to help you if you are about to take on a renovation in your space.

Kitchen:

Questions to ask yourself: Is the current layout working well? Is there anything missing from the current kitchen that you want (like a wall oven, built-in dishwasher or an island)? Are there any considerations to renovating like a busy family life, condo board restrictions or structural concerns? What is the best budget and timeframe for you?

Hidden costs: Re-routing pipes, old wiring that needs updating, floors that need strengthening, plumbing that needs upgrading. These are things that you only discover once the job had been started and walls/floors get opened up and exposed.

Designer tip: Keeping a simple design in mind for your kitchen will give it longevity. Here's two simple rules: Match the colour of the backsplash to the colour of cupboards you have chosen (creamy cabinets equals pale limestone or off-white backsplash tiles); match the tone/colouring of your countertop to the appliances (stainless steel appliances=medium to dark toned countertops).

Bedroom:

Questions to ask yourself:

Be sure to consider everything before you take the sledgehammer to the wall for a renovation.

Is there enough closet/storage space? Is there a focal wall that will fit the bed and two ends tables comfortably? Do you want a television, stereo speakers or a computer wired in the bedroom?

Hidden costs: Outfitting existing closets to be more efficient, privacy treatments on windows, new lighting or audio/visual equipment.

Designer tip: Are you a Cave or Cloud person? If you like to wake up in a dark room then you are a Cave person. Decorate your room with dark wood tones, richer wall and fabric colours and choose heavier draperies. If you are a Cloud person, then you need to wake up to some daylight streaming into the bedroom; decorate your room with lighter window treatments and lighter/brighter colours and tones.

The basement

• Questions to ask yourself: Is there sufficient height in the basement? Does the furnace, piping and duct work need to be re-routed in order to make better use of the space? Do you want to add a bathroom, sauna or kitchen in your basement?

• Hidden costs: Repairing wall structure, fixing hidden water damage, installing new furnace and windows.

• Designer tip: Basements often look dark and feel damp. Adding a heat source like a gas fireplace will add a sense of cosiness and enlarging the windows can add more light. By decorating with reflective materials such as glass and mirror you will bounce light around.

Karl Lohnes is passionate about good decor and wants to help you have a beautiful home; no matter what your budget or style.

Your home reno survival guide

It's best to stay somewhere else, but if you can't here's some tips for your reno

HomeScope

Sylvia Putz

metronews.ca/homescope

Generally speaking, I would strongly advise against living in a house undergoing a renovation.

Sure you can save money doing this, but will you save your sanity?

Even with this strong warning in place, I know there will always be those who live in the home during a renovation. Often, the decision is for economic reasons, and sometimes, homeowners under-estimate the difficulty of living in a space that is a construction zone.

It's important to know what you're in for. If the work extends only to a small part of the house, it is easier to maintain your equilibrium. If the whole house is involved, you will need to anticipate some very trying circumstances.

Here's how to survive:

- If you've got young children, stay with a relative or consider temporary living arrangements during the most disruptive periods of work. Construction sites can be unsafe for curious and active children, and produce a lot of stress in people who try to keep them safe.

- Minimize to an extreme degree the things that are stored in the house. Before construction starts, get rid of those you don't want or need. Then store as many things as you can in labelled containers, preferably away from your home where they won't get wrecked.

- Keep two rooms renovation-free to maintain at least some sense of order and routine, and a space into which to escape.

When you're having your space renovated, it's best to keep at least two rooms renovation free.

Keep these rooms meticulously organized.

- Maintain some semblance of your normal routine (homework time for children, simple meal preparation and cleanup, bath, and so on) to keep you on an even keel.

- Always have a work-in-progress bathroom.

- Always have a cooking area, even if it is temporary, involving a prep surface, a working sink and a stove.

- To avoid decision fatigue, make as many decisions as possible about flooring, colours and finishes ahead of time. Try to work out disagreements at this point, rather than during construction when delays can bring the whole process to a standstill.

- To keep your family and marital relations on an even keel, take the time to do something regularly that does not involve discussing the renovation.

- Realize that renovations usually take twice as long as expected.

Bring on budget bathrooms

The surprisingly strong housing market is catching many Canadians off-guard. Homeowners primed to sit on their investment and wait for the market to recover after the recession are once again thinking of selling their homes as sales and housing prices rebound more quickly than expected.

To prepare their houses for sale though, those looking to maximize their home's value are moving up the timetable on home repairs and upgrades like adding an extra washroom.

Having a minimum of two baths is essential to commanding a decent price in today's market and getting your listing noticed. Sites like the Multiple Listing Service (MLS) allow buyers to screen their searches by number of bathrooms among other criteria.

of your home," says Michael Polzler, executive vice president, regional director, RE/MAX Ontario-Atlantic Canada. "In fact, bathrooms ranked amongst the most value-added upgrades by consumers in a recent survey conducted by our company." For convenience and functionality, a house should have a bathroom on every level with functional living space. Adding a bathroom may seem like a daunting task, but with macerating toilet systems, this kind of renovation project doesn't have to be expensive or time consuming.

"Macerating toilet systems are a simple solution to what can be a complex problem," says Daniel Cayer, national sales manager of Saniflo Canada. "Our systems allow you to add a stylish bathroom anywhere in your home, from the basement to the attic, in as little as half a day."

Macerating toilets, or upflush toilets as they are sometimes called, provide homeowners with a money-saving option when conventional plumbing fixtures are impossible or cost-prohibitive to install. These above-floor systems do not require a toilet rough-in, allowing them to be installed on top of any finished surface, including concrete.

NEWS CANADA

Scaling back

- The good news is the economy is showing signs of recovery. The bad news is spending cuts aimed at slashing the deficit have forced the cancellation of stimulus incentives like the Home Renovation Tax Credit.

- Without the popular program being extended for another year, homeowners are once again faced with picking up the full tab for home improvement projects.

- Adding insult to injury, additional rebates offered by home improvement retailers hoping to woo customers planning to take advantage of the federal program are also a thing of the past. The loss of these incentives, which offered combined price breaks of 25 per cent or more, is hitting homeowners in the pocketbook. As a result, many homeowners are scaling back their renovation projects or eliminating the high-end fixtures and finishes they wouldn't have even given a second thought a year ago.

Homes in Style

JENNIFER BILL
for Metro Canada

Bring back the oldies by hopping on the vintage train.

Give classic decor items a new home by throwing touches of vintage style into your space, creating the feel of stepping back in time.

"When scouring flea markets and antique shops, look for pieces that speak to you," said Karen Kwinter, style editor-at-large at Canadian Living and Homemakers magazines. "Either they have an heirloom feeling or just feel like a treasure to you."

Kwinter says some of the most trendy ways to infuse classic style into a room are by using vintage suitcases stacked as a side table or vintage chairs either recovered, refinished or stripped — or a modern-shaped chair reupholstered with vintage fabric.

Boost the look of your yard with vintage garden furniture, left as is or repainted, throw some jungle fever into a room with vintage animal rugs — zebra prints are especially hot right now — or make a statement with a traditional chandelier.

Another way to add vintage into your decor is with world globes or framed vintage maps, or silver serving pieces, tea services or trays. Try lining your book shelf with vintage books or fill a wall or shelf with old paintings, either framed or unframed.

Mixing up old and current will give the feel of modern antiquity. Placing a vintage item among newer pieces will create a casual contrast while adding a sense of history and tradition — a vibrant rotary phone or antique clock is always good for a surprise.

"Don't be afraid to mix it up," says Kwinter. "Vintage goes great with both modern and contemporary. Don't want to run around? Check out eBay, it's an amazing source for vintage finds."

Hand-covered in vintage-inspired floral fabric and then distressed to reveal only a portion of its beauty, this looking glass frames your face in just the right amount of soft petals. The Uncovered Paradise Mirror ties in a Victorian renovation. Anthropology, $598, anthropology.com.

Do your garden up vintage too: Based on a French antique, the vintage design of the garden Hose Reel Wagon is great for storing and moving your extra hose around the yard. Crafted of powder-coated, moisture-resistant metal with antique rust finish, for a hose up to 200 feet long. Ballard Design, $199, ballard-designs.com.

The Metals & Petals Vase has multifaceted mercury glass that takes on a copper or silver glow to illuminate woody stems and bare end tables. Anthropology, $24, anthropology.com.

Set the mood with the Cora Glass Candle Holders instantly adding a vintage elegance to any room. Urban Barn, $19 (small), $22 (medium), $25 (large), urbanbarn.ca.

The tiers of silver circle cutouts reflect light illuminating even the darkest space in this Silver Circle Pendant Lamp, made from silver laser-cut polypropylene, lighting up a room capturing the disco era. Urban Barn, $120, urbanbarn.ca.

The deco-inspired acrylic design of the Empire Table Lamp has an architectural flair, reminiscent of the famous Empire State Building. A clear base allows light to shine through to beautifully illuminate the room, with brightness controlled through a built-in tri-light. Urban Barn, $199, urbanbarn.ca.

The interesting shapes of the Terre Apothecary Jars were inspired by vintage druggist bottles from France. French labels add an authentic, vintage feel. They look great in bath or boudoir filled with cotton balls, make-up brushes and colorful bath salts. Ballard Design, $49 (set of 3), ballarddesigns.com.

Top: Moma Mia! The Moma Sofa in stunning silver has soft velvety fabric, rolled cushions and a button back, with solid wood frame. Moma chair also available. Urban Barn, $1,199, urbanbarn.ca. Bottom: Inspired by high-end vintage European sofas, the Rialto leather of the cozy Preston Sofa will age beautifully with time and use. The Italian leather is finished with an "old-world" patina look. Made of top-grain Italian leather and constructed with a kiln dried hardwood frame, Combination of high-density foam with down and feathers for extra comfort. Preston Arm Chair and Loveseat also available. Urban Barn, $1,199, urbanbarn.ca.

Getting restitution for latent defects harder than you think

LegalMatters

Jeffrey D. Cowan

jeff@cowanlaw.ca

Q I purchased a condominium a number of months ago and spent several thousands of dollars painting and installing crown. Over the past couple of weeks, I have noticed a bubbling of the paint and the plaster in the walls. My contractor has indicated that the walls will more than likely have to be re-drywalled. My neighbours stated that this is an ongoing problem and that most of the units in the building have been re-drywalled over the existing plaster. It now appears as if the former owner knew about this problem because if you look closely you can see where problems must have been patched. What is my recourse?

A Your problem is a not too uncommon issue known as a latent defect. This situation occurs when a new owner uncovers a problem that more than likely the previous owner had known about but did not disclose before the sale. He or she had a duty to disclose any known issues to the new owner and it can then be addressed by way of and abatement (reduction) in the purchase price or the current owner can have the problem fixed prior to closing.

One of the most common latent defects is blocked drainage/sewage pipes where the pipes may be old and tree roots have infiltrated and broken down the structure. Obviously, water and sewage can no longer drain properly and may back up. This is a serious and costly problem.

The main issue with latent defects is whether or not you can prove that the vendor knew about the problem. In the case of the condo walls, it was a well-documented issue throughout the building so on the face of it, you have a direct cause of action for damages against the vendor if they don't rectify the problem with quantifiable damages. With things like tree roots in the pipes it is a much harder issue to address because you may not have proof that the vendor knew about the problem. Often times, going to the neighbours can be of assistance because the issue may have been discussed with them. If they are willing to attest to the vendor having knowledge, then you have potential recourse.

So, latent defects, which are items that cannot be detected prior to closing (even with a home inspection) can be a big problem. The proof of prior knowledge is the important factor.

Praise for Habitat For Humanity

Rooftop Surfing

Stephen Dupuis

metronews.ca/rooftopsurfing

Scanning the list of the top ten U.S. home builders in 2009, the one name that jumps right off the page is Habitat for Humanity.

Habitat is becoming increasingly well known for building decent, affordable homes for working poor families using volunteer labour including the "sweat equity" of the eventual homeowners. If you think of the old-fashioned barn raising's, that's kind of how Habitat operates its homebuilding operations.

Turns out Habitat raised a lot of homes in the U.S. last year, 5,294 to be exact, good enough to move up from 11th to eighth place on the list of top U.S. homebuilders. Considering the construction model, which relies largely on donated labour, the fact that Habitat is delivering 20 homes per working day in the U.S. is truly remarkable.

A little closer to home, the Toronto affiliate of Habitat for Humanity delivered 89 decent, affordable homes last year and, with the recent ground-breaking on a 29-unit project in the City's east end, is off to a great start this year.

As a title home donor, I had the honour of representing our Association at the ground-breaking. The event was kicked-off by Habitat Toronto's CEO, Neil Hetherington. Hetherington's a great leader — you have to be to get 89 affordable homes built at the peak of the global financial crisis.

Speaking on behalf of the 29 partner families who will eventually live in this latest Habitat development, Antonio Garcia described the "awesome" feeling he had when informed that his family had been chosen as a Habitat homeowner.

Garcia's family of five currently lives in a crowded, two-bedroom apartment in a rough neighbourhood. Desperate for a way to ensure his kids were not exposed to the bad elements, he approached Habitat and was ecstatic to be approved and have the opportunity to live in a clean and safe place. "I found the place where happiness is," Garcia said in his clearly heartfelt remarks.

Garcia's comments are what makes Habitat ground-breakings such "moving" events, literally and figuratively. I am immensely proud of BILDs community partnership with Habitat for Humanity Toronto, a relationship which is so apropos considering our mutual interest in affordable homeownership.

ROI an important aspect of home reno projects

RENOVATION For homeowners planning renovation projects this summer, making sure their home improvements are adding to the value of their homes is a common concern.

According to RENOVA, a web-based tool that helps homeowners calculate the potential rate of return on the top 25 most common renovation projects, bathroom renovations, along with kitchen renovations, topped the list, each boasting an expected ROI of 75 to 100 per cent.

The National Institute of the Remodeling Industry also ranked adding a bathroom near the top of its list for return on investment. The group estimated the average cost of installing a new bathroom at $10,000 and the average rate of return at 96 per cent.

Macerating toilet systems, like those by Saniflo (Saniflo.ca), are a great option for homeowners looking to maximize their return on a bathroom addition because of their comparatively low installation costs. Because these systems eliminate the need for a rough-in they allow homeowners to install a full bathroom for a fraction of the cost.

"Macerating systems can be installed on top of any finished floor," says Daniel Cayer, national sales manager at Saniflo Canada. "This lets homeowners cost-effectively add a new bathroom wherever it is most convenient: In a basement, attic or garage, under the stairs or inside a newly remodelled space."

Macerating toilets great option when adding a bathroom.

Macerating toilets route flush water through the back of the toilet instead of down into the floor. A rotating blade is used to reduce waste and toilet paper, so it can be pumped away through ¾-inch pipe to a connecting drain stack. The advantage of using use small-diameter pipe is that that drain lines can be run without opening up walls and floors, which reduces renovation mess and installation time.

Precollections are becoming increasingly more important

According to the experts

• Helen David, womenswear, Harrods:

"Pre-collections ensure that we always have new merchandise arriving on the floor," explains Helen David, the womenswear general merchandise manager at Harrods in London, England. "They allow us to continue to offer the full priced customer new merchandise during the sale period, which is imperative to being able to look after this customer all year round," she adds. David notes that pre-collections are great because they're also the most commercial delivery and sit on the sales floor at full price for the longest time. "So they drive the business while offering a great selection to the customer," she says.

pre-collections are usually more wearable.

What exactly is a pre-collection anyway?

Consider them the more low-key, real-life cousins to the runway extravaganzas you see photos of during the fashion weeks. Increasingly big sellers in stores,

While the clothes you see on a prêt-à-porter catwalk often look more appropriate for a fantastical magazine shoot than the street, the pre-collections are created to work in a woman's every wardrobe. And they're often shown in modest presentations in showrooms instead of big productions. (Though it's worth noting that more resort '11 collections were shown as runway shows this season than ever before). They also give a hint at what direction a designer might go in for the prêt-à-porter season. For example, the military trend first surfaced in a Burberry Prorsum pre-fall collection. Pictured above and right is a look at a few resort '11 standouts.

Out of Africa and on to Pandora

Colour beading, graphic animal prints and fabulous fabrics are given a galactic twist this season inspired by Avatar

Whenever the tribal trend — those looks that conjure adventure and exotic destinations — treks into fashion, it is typically to the African continent where designers look for inspiration.

The riotous fabrics, the colourful beading and the graphic animal prints have all provided a wealth of ideas that have been exhaustively mined for fashion since Yves Saint Laurent produced his first African-inspired collection in the late '60s.

But this summer, as the tribal beat is once again heard in the fashion world, it seems the inspiration goes beyond Africa. It looks like it may be plundered from Pandora and the Na'vi, the blue-skinned natives of this faraway planet featured in the blockbuster movie Avatar.

The swirls of ikat, batik and tie-dyed prints and patterns that abound this season are technicolour sharp with a digitized look, giving a galactic feel.

The animal prints glow neon bright — more akin to the colourful pterodactyls that soar around the Hallelujah Mountains of Pandora than the standard colours that roam the African savannah or lurk in its deep, lush jungles.

And the turquoise-coloured jewelry is a perfect match for the blue-skinned Princess Neytiri.

When it comes to adopting this season's tribal trend, shoot for the stars.

Miley CyrusAlbum: *Can't Be TamedLabel: UniversalRating: ●●●½

MILEY CYRUS TRIES to shake her tweeny TV image with lush beats, and Auto-Tune set to overdrive. Her leather pants, just-got-outta-bed hair and come-hither pout suggest she's taking a sharp turn to skankville. Don't panic. The danceclub stuff never gets too out of hand and by the fourth track Miley settles into a groove that undulates somewhere between Taylor Swift and Ke$ha. She's best when leaning toward the country side of things on tracks like Every Rose Has Its Thorn and Two More Lonely People. This CD will please loyal fans. It's hard to imagine her making any new ones yet, though.

Stars is the Canadian indie band's ability to blend late night horror lyrics into charming, almost sentimental, melodies. Chief songwriters Amy Milan and Torquil Campbell have never done it better than on their latest with songs like Dead Hearts and I Died So I Could Haunt You. Milan's little-girl vocals belie the shrouds floating by on the multi-banked synthesizers. And yet the sound never degenerates into '80s Goth retrograde. On The Five Ghosts, Stars take a step with Metric toward pop stardom.

Jackson's spirit kept alive by fans

CEMETERY Hundreds of fans are expected at Forest Lawn on Friday to commemorate Michael Jackson's death. The singer's tomb inside the cemetery's gothic Great Mausoleum remains closed to the public, and Friday's memorial won't change that.

But through the efforts of fans, it's become a place where Jackson's international fan base comes to grieve. Many who can't make it in person send letters, poems, artwork and other gifts so that Jacobs and others can deliver them to the cemetery, where they are placed at the singer's tomb until new items arrive. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MUSEUM A Jackson 5 exhibit has opened at the Motown Historical Museum in Detroit, marking the one-year anniversary this week of Michael Jackson's death. The public is able to view photographs, awards and uniforms the group wore throughout its career. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Remembering MJ

Childhood hometown to hold memorial for Michael Jackson

The childhood hometown of Michael Jackson is planning a tribute Friday at his former house to mark the one-year anniversary of his death, and the mayor says his mother is among the people expected to attend.

Gary Mayor Rudy Clay says Katherine Jackson will attend the event along with her granddaughter, Genevieve Jackson, the daughter of Randy Jackson. The event will include speeches, performances and a candlelight vigil.

"We expect thousands to show up," said city spokeswoman LaLosa Burn.

Workers at the house on Tuesday said Katherine Jackson wanted the house spruced up for the event.

The flowers, balloons, stuffed animals and signs that covered the front lawn for weeks after Jackson's death from an overdose of sedatives are gone. The tiny house already has a new roof, a fresh coat of white paint, newly poured concrete along the walkway and driveway and is surrounded by a black wrought iron fence.

The only time Jackson has returned to his hometown was in 2003, when plans for a Michael Jackson Performing Arts Center in the city's downtown were announced. It was never built.

Jackson's father and city officials announced plans earlier this month to move

The memorial, consisting of flowers and candles, stayed on the Jackson residence for months after his death.

The city hopes to make the memorial an annual event.

ANNIVERSARY Michael Jackson's mother has given her blessing to a tribute concert that will mark the anniversary of the pop singer's death.

VoicePlate Productions is staging the Forever Michael fan event Saturday at the Beverly Hilton hotel in Beverly Hills, Calif., but some have wondered if it was legitimate or done with the family's approval.

In a video posted on YouTube, Katherine Jackson appeared with the tribute's organizer, Joseph Fahmy, to thank him for putting it together.

"I know that Michael would be very honoured," she said. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tupac Shakur.

Tupac Shakur song lives on

RECORDING Rapper Tupac Shakur's song Dear Mama, Bill Cosby's second comedy album and rare battle sounds from Second World War are among 25 recordings the Library of Congress is preserving for their cultural significance.

Selections for the 2009 National Recording Registry are being announced Wednesday. They must be at least 10 years old and be culturally, historically or aesthetically significant.

The combination of Cosby — an outspoken critic of profanity and violence in hip-hop culture — with work from a rapper who was shot and killed in 1996 is notable, but organizers said Tupac's Dear Mama was a heartfelt homage to mothers struggling with addiction and poverty.

It's also a "relatively tame" recording, and the cultural impact of hip-hop is undeniable, program coordinator Steve Leggett said. Tupac is the third rapper inducted, following Grandmaster Flash and Public Enemy.

In announcing the registry, Librarian of Congress James Billington said the list "showcases the diverse beauty, humanity and artistry found in the American soundscape."

The new additions include performances by Little Richard, Willie Nelson, REM, Patti Smith and the 1923 recording Canal Street Blues by King Oliver's Creole Jazz Band.

Teen fiction opens the closet door

At his Kentucky elementary school, kids taunted Brent on the playground about being gay, whatever that was. By eighth grade, he realized what they meant and came out to a friend — and vice versa.

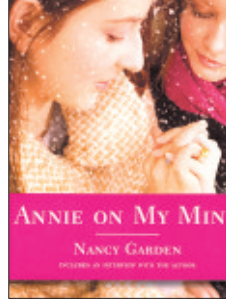

She was an avid writer, he a voracious reader. They headed to their school library in search of stories that spoke to their lives: gay, gay in the South, and gay and fearing stereotypes like “disgusting” and “worthless.”

“There were tons of books about gangs and drugs and teen pregnancy and there were no LGBT books,” said Brent, now 15 and heading into his sophomore year of senior high. Turning to bookstores, they finally found what they’d been looking for — a recent explosion in the publishing world of reads that speak to lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and questioning teens.

First came a gem, a book for young people that made them cry: Martin

Wilson’s 2008 debut, What They Always Tell Us, set in Tuscaloosa, Ala. The story about a troubled year for two brothers, one of whom finds solace in a relationship with a boy, made him feel less like an “alien on your own planet.”

A world of books followed. Brent read his way through Tom Dolby, Robin Reardon, Julie Ann Peters and David Levithan. He soon realized there were lots of coming-out stories, but he also craved romance, fantasy and para-

Reads that speak to lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and questioning teens have travelled light years since John Donovan’s I’ll Get There. Hot Hot Heat feeling cool

Leaving their major label was the choice they needed

The day he walked away from a lucrative contract with a major label, Hot Hot Heat's Steve Bays was comforted by a small slice of validation.

Just as he was walking out of the Warner Bros. offices for the last time, his ear picked up the sounds of his own band's 2005 album, Elevator, blaring from the office of the label's art director.

But it was the record's rudimentary demo he was hearing, not the super-polished version that hit store shelves. Curious, Bays asked why he was listening to the sketched-out version of the album — recorded by Bays himself — rather than the finished product.

"He was like: 'I prefer these over the album,'" Bays recalled in a telephone interview from Orange County, Calif. "I was like, 'You prefer the demos I made for free over the $300,000 album that we made?'"

"It just became obvious to me: our strength is not about being streamlined or sounding perfect. The flaws are actually the strengths of the band."

"So this time, we just left

For Hot Hot Heat, it was time to find their own road.

all the flaws in."

Bays is referring to the band's just-released fifth album, Future Breeds, which is being hailed by some as a return-to-form for the Victoria-bred rockers.

The band backed away from Warner in 2008, after the previous year's effort Happiness Ltd. proved a commercial and critical disappointment.

Bays said the band found themselves at a crossroads. He felt they needed the autonomy to make whichever creative changes they felt were necessary, and they didn't think they could get that while on the payroll of a major label.

And without that freedom to make decisions — and even mistakes — they weren't sure they could continue on.

"It just seemed like the only option, to be honest," Bays says of their departure from the label. "I just thought, well, I don't know if it's the right fit for us, and especially with the direction that we want to take things. I want to produce the record myself, I want to engineer it myself. We're not necessarily going to produce songs that are meant to be played on the radio.

"We wanted to reinvent the band."

Bays and drummer Paul Hawley — the only other remaining member of the band's original lineup — crafted a manifesto, which they called "The Constitution." He said it was composed of creative ideas they had, ideas about the way they wanted to live their lives and "grow into adults."

Mostly, they wanted to find a way to fill every moment of their next album with surprising, interesting ideas. And they wanted to do it without the harsh glare of a record label that had invested millions in the band.

Just for Stephen Harper: G20 Cabaret

G20 Summit

Renowned Canadian Cree playwright Tomson Highway has given his new show, Kisageetin: A Cabaret, a special nickname for its Toronto debut during the G20 summit.

"We're calling it the G21 Cabaret just to remind (Prime Minister) Harper of the fact that he's holding his beloved summit on native land and that the 21st nation in the entire mixture is aboriginal Canada," the two-time Dora Award winner said in a recent interview.

"Do not forget aboriginal Canada — especially this week."

Kisageetin: A Cabaret — running Thursday through Sunday at the downtown Berkeley Street Theatre (the G20 runs Saturday and Sunday) — features 12 love songs composed and written in Cree by Highway.

Sudbury, Ont., native Patricia Cano sings the tunes as Highway plays piano and Toronto-based Christopher Plock plays saxophone.

Highway, 58, originally penned the tunes as a 60th birthday present for his longtime partner, Raymond Lalond ("Kisageetin" is a Cree word meaning "I love you"). But for the cabaret, the tunes also serve as an ode to the planet, he says.

The music is a blend of tango and samba, inspired by Highway's trip to South America three years ago, and by Cole Porter and Kurt Weill.

"Imagine Kurt Weill, you know, like Mack the Knife and that kind of cabaret music — with Cree lyrics. It's a very special blend of theatre," explained Highway, who was born near Maria Lake, Man., and is a member of the Order of Canada.

"It's a uniquely Canadian cultural product that exists nowhere else on the face of the planet."

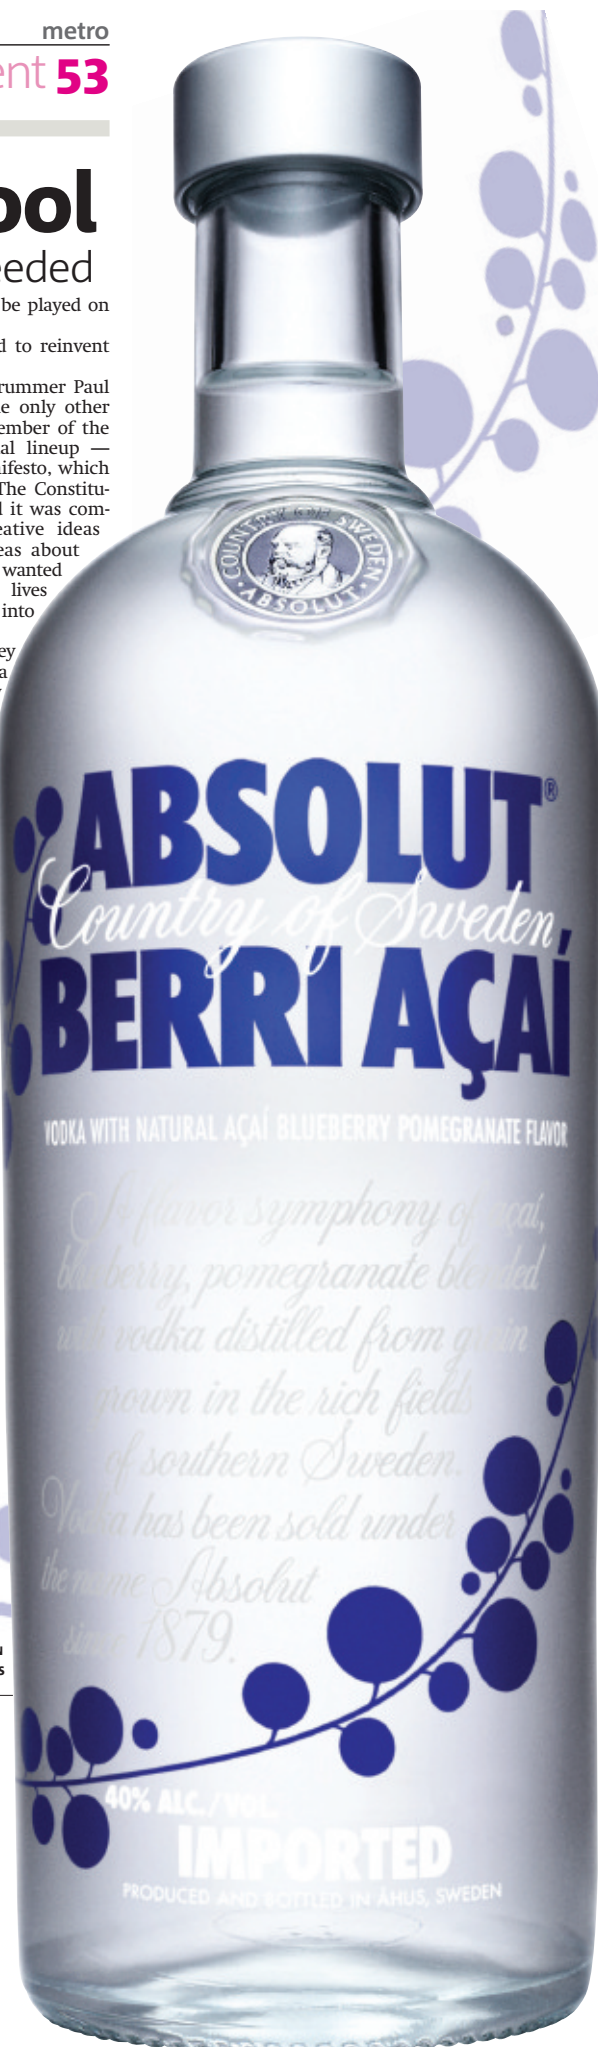

Kisageetin: A Cabaret is presented by the Thunderbird Centre with Denise Bolduc, and produced by Miziwe Biik Development Corporation.

Its Toronto run is timed to coincide with National Aboriginal History Month.

Laptop on hand, Kimmel shoots himself

The picture was fuzzy. The sound was tinny. Jimmy Kimmel Live! was less like a broadcast than a webcast.

No wonder. "We're having a technical problem tonight, so I decided to do the whole show from my computer," Kimmel explained at the top of the hour in his office, one hand holding his laptop as he aimed its built-in webcam at himself.

Who needs expensive TV cameras, a fancy control room or high-tech recording gadgetry?

Not Kimmel, when faced with a power outage right before show time. For Tuesday's edition, the resourceful TV host turned his late night chat show into iChat.

Walking on stage toting his laptop with him, he pivoted the webcam to display his cheering studio audience.

"We're having a technical problem tonight, so I decided to do the whole show from my computer."

Jimmy Kimmel

"Can't we just plug into whatever that beacon is, right there?" he asked, pointing to the bright studio lights.

Alas, no. The lights worked fine, but the outage had shut down the control room, broadcast transmission centre and tape operations area at Kimmel's Hollywood studio. Things had gone on the fritz Monday shortly before the ABC late-night show was scheduled to begin taping.

"I don't know if this is going to work," he said more than once, appearing genuinely perplexed.

But it did, in a goofy, amateur-hour, show-must-go-on sort of way.

Even so, the unconventional production technique caused a day's delay. A repeat episode of "Jimmy Kimmel Live!" aired Monday. (The show airs weeknights at 12:05 a.m. EDT.)

Kimmel chatted up members of the audience in a bald effort to kill time. "You see, we don't need celebrities to do this show," he joked.

But he had celebrities. Guests included film star Seth Rogen, comedian John Henson and country artist Dierks Bentley.

"Are we still on? Yeah, this is still working," Kimmel said, apparently checking himself on his laptop screen in mid-interview with Rogen.

"Yeah, it's working," Rogen said. "It's amazing, isn't it?"

The audience cheered distantly.

Postproduction was kept to a minimum. A clip from "The Green Hornet," the film Rogen was plugging, was added later, with the studio audience deprived of so much as a glimpse.

"Not only will these people not be able to see it," Kimmel cracked, "but they're not allowed to come to the movie."

Kimmel interviewed Henson, a co-host of the Host Jimmy Kimmel jumped in with his webcam when the power went out.

game show "Wipeout," in his dressing room.

Back in the studio, Bentley and his band managed to fit into the webcam frame to perform a song.

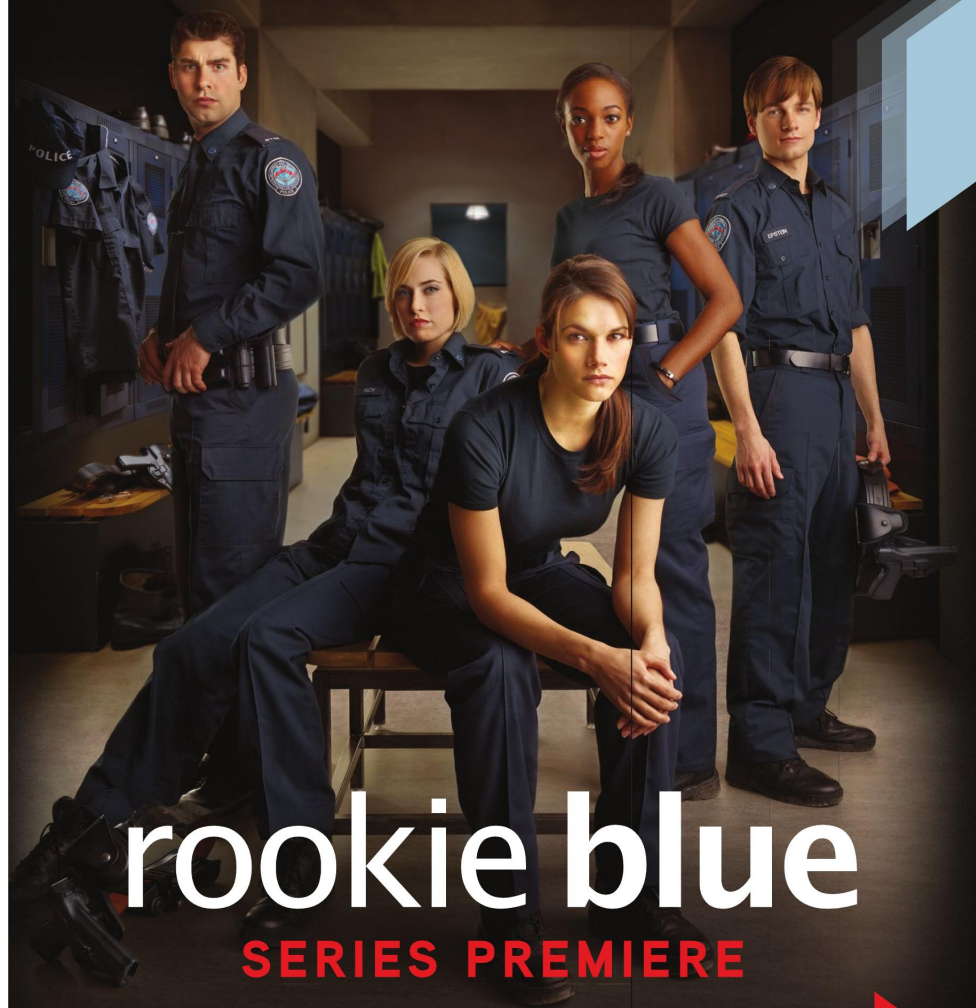

"I promise nothing terrible like this will ever, ever happen again," Kimmel told viewers as he signed off.

Of course, Kimmel isn't the only late-night host to be plagued by (and to overcome) a technical glitch recently.

Last October, "Late Late Show" host Craig Ferguson had to finish taping his program by flashlight after high winds knocked out power at CBS Television City in Los Angeles. Studio lights began dimming and then suddenly went black as Ferguson was interviewing actress Alicia Silverstone, leaving both in the dark until the flashlight was switched on.

Peregrym, a Surrey, B.C., native, and Gregory Smith, are both veterans of American productions like Heroes and The Patriot, and relished the opportunity to return home for Rookie Blue.

"That was actually one of the things that I was most excited about," said Smith. "I was born in Toronto and it's my favorite city in the world. I've shot all over the place and there's nowhere better."

Oscars to get new blood

AWARDS Hollywood veterans Bruce Cohen and Don Mischer will oversee the next Academy Awards.

The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences said Tuesday that Oscar-winning producer Cohen will oversee the Feb. 27 show with live-event maestro Mischer, who will also serve as the telecast's director.

It will be the first time either has worked on the ceremony, though the two previously teamed up for the Academy's inaugural Governors Awards event in November.

"I fell in love with the Oscars as an 8-year-old kid, the night my grandmothers let me stay up to watch for the first time," Cohen, who won an Oscar in 1999 for American Beauty, said in a statement. "It is a dream come true for me to now be producing the show."

The Next Food Network Star
Twelve contestants arrive in Los Angeles to compete for their own show on Food Network, but this season they've got an added advantage: a seasoned mentor to help them. Popular Food Network host Giada De Laurentis joins the show in this new function, offering support and advice to the contestants as they struggle to cope with this pressure cooker of a situation. Bobby Flay, Bob Tuschman and Susie Fogelson return as judges. 9 PM on FOOD

Rookie Blue

Just out of the police academy, Andy McNally (Missy Peregrym, "Reaper") is one of five young rookie cops who find themselves thrown into the deep end of the pool on their very first day. As the series opens, Andy faces a volatile gunman after a high-stakes takedown of a suspect does not go as planned in the new episode "Fresh Paint." Gregory Smith, Travis Milne, Charlotte Sullivan, Erika Okuma and Eric Johnson also star. 9 PM on ABC, GTV

Ech.

But despite the outdated look, the food is exactly what you would expect from the Four Seasons — spectacular.

We take advantage of the three-course prix fixe dinner ($35/person, $49/person incl. two glasses of wine), which includes Chicken Liver Parfait, Grilled Quail and house-made ice creams.

I begin with Tuna Nicoise, a deconstructed salad of sliced seared tuna, crisp green beans, cherry tomatoes, black olives, teeny hard-boiled eggs finished with a swath of homemade mayonnaise. My companion's Soup of the Day, Vichyssoise, is well-balanced and not too creamy. Both are fantastic hot weather selections.

The Broiled Mackerel with Warm Potato Salad and Scallion Pesto features the best mackerel I've ever had. And with two large pieces, you really get to savour it. Glazed Beef Cheek with Green Garlic Mash and Mushroom Jus is divine. The cheek is robust and tender, resulting in a hearty yet delicate meal.

The desserts are no less spectacular. The food is incredible and the surroundings and service are not. But oh, what a night.

Oscar winner's sex education

SORRY, FOLKS. AWESOME PEOPLE ARE OFFICIALLY EXEMPT FROM SNARK HERE AT BUZZ HQ

Helen Mirren admits her latest role as a madam of a brothel in Love Ranch was a bit of a stretch. "I'm a would-be rebel — the good girl who'd like to be a bad one, she tells New York magazine. "I'm not a prude or a moralist and I never have been, but I'm too fearful, too much of a wimp, really." In order to break out of her shell and get into the role, husband and director Taylor Hackford convinced the Oscar-winning actress to spend a night in an actual brothel. "It's amazing how quickly you get into dildos everywhere and pink-feather handcuffs," she says. "Within an hour you're completely used to it."

Seinfeld blasts 'jerky' Lady Gaga

AND THUS CLAIMS HIS SPOT IN THE PANTHEON OF CROTCHETY OLD MEN. SEINFELD FANS: YOU'RE OFFICIALLY OVER THE HILL Lady Gaga does not have a fan in Jerry Seinfeld. "That woman is a jerk. I hate her," he tells WFAN during an on-air interview. The pop singer had been moved to Seinfeld's luxury box during a Mets game after she was giving photographers the middle finger from her field-level seats. "I can't believe they put her in my box, which I paid for," he says. "You give people the finger and you get upgraded? Is that the world we're living in now?"

Pattinson: No secret Mormon messages in Twilight

THAT'S IT, BOBBY — DEFEND THAT PAYCHECK! Robert Pattinson insists that just because author Stephenie Meyer is Mormon, that doesn't mean the Twilight books and movies are filled with secret Mormon messages. "I think people make up all these Mormon references just so they can publish Twilight articles in respectable publications like the New York Times," the actor tells Entertainment Weekly. "Even Stephenie said it doesn't mean any of that. It is based on a dream."

Mel takes up hypnosis

IT'S THE ONLY WAY HE CAN STILL CONVINCE WORLD HE'S A STAR Mel Gibson has apparently picked up a new skill, though it's not clear how he plans to use it. The actor and director recently took a private crash-course in hypnosis with Rick Collingwood, an Australian expert. "Mel's a natural. He's got the look and the patter — as well as piercing blue eyes. He's going to be a great hypnotist," Collingwood says, according to Popcrunch. "I was with him for 10 days teaching him the technique. He is very, very interested in it. He didn't say he wanted to learn it for a specific reason. He was just curious."

London Alley oops!

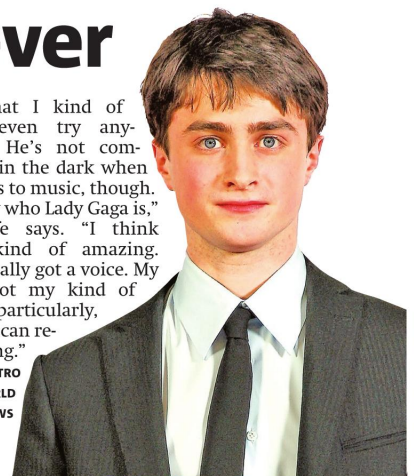

Lady Gaga takes a spill at London's Heathrow airport yesterday in what appear to be 10-inch leather platform boots, left. It seems as though her sensible travel attire may have been a little tricky to manoeuvre in real life. Luckily, no ankles were irreparably destroyed in the fall, and Gaga exited the terminal, right, with all her bones — if not her dignity — intact.

Radcliffe immune to Bieber fever

SAID ONE TEEN ICON ABOUT THE NEXT Daniel Radcliffe may not have heard of Justin Bieber until recently, but after his recent comments, he'll certainly be hearing from the pop star's fans. "I only heard Justin Bieber for the first time two weeks ago," the Harry Potter star tells MTV News. "I genuinely thought it was a woman singing. I'd never heard it before. Is it big in England yet? I'm so out of the loop when it comes to pop culture that I kind of don't even try anymore." He's not completely in the dark when it comes to music, though. "I know who Lady Gaga is," Radcliffe says. "I think she's kind of amazing. She's really got a voice. My God. Not my kind of music, particularly, but she can really sing."

Metro Recipe of the Day

Grilled Chicken with White BBQ Sauce

Recipe Developed by Paula Bowman

PREP TIME: 10 MINUTES

COOK TIME: 15 MINUTES

INGREDIENTS:

1 cup plain Greek style yogurt
1/4 cup olive oil
2 tbsp cider vinegar
2 tbsp honey
2 tbsp prepared horseradish
1 1/2 tsp salt, plus more for chicken
1/2 tsp finely ground black pepper, plus more for chicken
1/2 tsp cayenne
1 1/2 lb chicken drumsticks, boneless thighs or breasts

METHOD:

1. Preheat a grill to medium-high.
2. In a bowl, combine yogurt, 1 tablespoon olive oil, cider vinegar, honey, horseradish, salt, black pepper and 1/4 teaspoon cayenne and stir until blended. Measure 1/2 cup of yogurt mixture and set aside for garnish.

3. In a small bowl, combine 2 tablespoons olive oil and 1/4 teaspoon cayenne and stir well. Brush oil mixture on chicken pieces and season with salt and pepper. Place chicken on hot grill and cook, turning often and basting with olive oil mixture until cooked through. Chicken breasts and boneless thighs will be about 5 to 8 minutes per side, drumsticks will be about 14 to 16 minutes. During the last 6 minutes of cooking, baste chicken with remaining 1/2 cup yogurt mixture and discard any that remains after chicken is finished. Cover chicken with tinfoil and let rest until ready to serve.

MARCH 21-APRIL 20

You may be under a great deal of pressure but you must get the work-play balance right or pressure will lead to stress and stress will lead to failure.

LIBRA
SEPT 23-OCT 23

You rather defensive at the moment, but overall life is still good and will get even better over the next few weeks. Stop worrying and start living.

TAURUS
APRIL 21-MAY 21

You've had some great ideas of late but you still need to go back and check that you have not missed anything important or made any miscalculations.

SCORPIO
OCT 24-NOV 22

Chances are you will find yourself at odds with what the rest of the world seems to believe, but you are not the sort to change your opinions to suit others.

GEMINI
MAY 22-JUNE 21

Something you have always accepted as true, because the experts told you so, will be revealed as a hoax.

SAGITTARIUS
NOV 23-DEC 21

You may think you need to get busy and get everything finished in one mad rush, but you're wrong. Focus on one thing at a time.

CANCER
JUNE 22-JULY 22

Although you give others the impression that you are super confident you actually worry a lot and that is something you need to come to terms with.

CAPRICORN
DEC 22-JAN 20

You will find it difficult to keep your doubts at bay today. But are they really your doubts, or are they other people's doubts you've picked up on?

LEO
JULY 23-AUG 23

You may be having second thoughts about the direction your life is taking but it is too late to turn back.

AQUARIUS
JAN 21-FEB 18

You don't change your ways easily, if at all. Today, however, you will need to change the way you deal with someone you work with.

VIRGO
AUG 24-SEPT 22

You may be a little confused by all the changes taking place in your life but that's no bad thing. Sometimes you think too much.

PISCES
FEB 19-MARCH 20

There is someone you would be wise to avoid today. You know who they are and you know why their company is toxic.
